"What in the (expletive deleted) will we be able to do with them?" said one Springfield Shawnee coach to another during halftime of Circleville's 62-54 total team victory over a much taller St. Charles squad in the Central District final game Saturday night at the Columbus Fairgrounds Coliseum.

The first-ever district title earned by John Lawhorn's multi-faceted Tigers pits them against Shawnee in first-round Class AA Regional action Friday at 9:30 p.m. at the University of Dayton arena. They are one of 16 teams in the running for the State title of the 264 that started the season.

The scouts were referring to the diversity of the Tiger buzz-saw attack that challenged the strength of St. Charles' 2-3 zone defense for 34 first-half points and the active man-to-man defense that worked like a revolving door to hold the potent Cardinals without a field goal in the second period enroute to 18 first-half markers.

Circleville's senior co-captain Harold "Willis" Reed, a 6-1 forward who had been dormant in the first three tournament games in favor of Tiger center George Moore, provided the offensive spark Saturday to allow George to concentrate on his defense.

Reed hooped 12 of 21 shots from the floor and five free throws for 29 points, hauled in 11 rebounds, and contained Cardinal center Mike Hausfeld to only eight points in the first three period.

His mates set him up for the scores, but Reed did most of the work with one of the finest individual efforts in the tournament to date. Reed, who had nearly half of the Tiger team shooting attempts, wormed his way time and again between 6-4 Hausfeld, 6-5 Eric Stinson, 6-4 Marquis Miller, and 6-5 Terry Tucker for lay-up scores.

The work of guards Perry Hoskins, Mike McCoy and Brent Mancini in directing the offense and of Moore, Biff Bumgarner, and Brad Spangler in clearing some tall timber also aided the cause.

The guards, excelling in match-ups with the Cardinal ball handlers, applied and accepted pressure well to make the attack click.

The Tiger big men made themselves known on defense, forcing St. Charles to rely on its outside shooting with good, basic blocking techniques. The Tigers actually won the battle of the boards, claiming nine offensive rebounds and 23 defensive ones to four offensive and 15 defensive for St. Charles.

Moore had six, Spangler had five, Bumgarner nailed down four, and Mancini speared three.

Senior co-captain Hoskins had 10 points, including four of eight shots from the floor, and even got in a little work at the forward position.

Moore and Bumgarner scored eight each. Moore, who hit three of four shots, held 6-4 forward Mark Russell scoreless and limited Marquis Miller to just five points while helping Reed with Hausfeld.

End To Rebates Brings Slowdown In Auto Sales

DETROIT (AP) — A week after the auto industry's cash rebate programs ended, many car dealers report a sharp drop in sales. And some fear the traditional spring upturn won't arrive this year.

"It's been damn slow since last Saturday (March 1)," said F.M. Constantin Jr., a Pittsburgh Dodge dealer. "People seem to have quit coming around, and we are ordering cars from the factory only on a basis of need — here and there."

Sam Breaute, sales manager for a Chrysler-Plymouth agency in Baltimore, said: "We are kind of holding our own, and some dealers here say their showroom traffic has died off completely."

Buffalo, N.Y., Lincoln-Mercury dealer Richard Echtenkamp said, "It was the consensus of a local association meeting that sales in this area are now down."

The dealers' comments confirm gloomy forecasts by auto company analysts that sales, already depressed for 18 months, would fall even more in the postrebate period.

The four major automakers had

Mentor Teachers Ratify Contract

MENTOR, Ohio (AP)—The Mentor Teachers Association tentatively ratified a contract today, ending its six-day-old strike if its members give the contract final approval tonight.

The contract, details of which weren't disclosed, was approved in early morning voting, but final approval was left pending final wording of the pact and action by the Mentor Board of Education, which was to meet tonight. The teachers scheduled another decision session for after the board's meeting.

Officials delayed the start of classes 1½ hours today to give the teachers time to consider the pact worked out during negotiations which stretched late into the nighttime hours.

The 5-11 Bumgarner had the assignment of guarding Eric Stinson, St. Charles's 6-5 super player, who collected only 10 points before fouling out late in the game.

Brad Spangler picked up four points, spelling Moore, who was in foul trouble from the second period on. Mike McCoy netted two points before fouling out, and his replacement, Brent Mancini, added a point at the foul line.

Hausfeld scored 21 points to pace St. Charles. Stinson added 10, and Jim Tracy had nine.

For the game, the Tigers converted 23 of 45 shots from the floor for 51 per cent and made 16 of 24 free throws for 66 per cent. The Cardinals were 21 of 48 from the floor for 43 per cent and 12 of 20 at the line for 60 per cent.

Circleville had 18 turnovers, while the Cardinals were charged with 23.

With Reed scoring 10 points, the Tigers came on strong in the final minutes of the first period to claim an 18-12 lead. But the winning burst came in a 15 and a half minute stretch in the first three periods that saw the Cardinals manage only 14 points.

The Tigers converted nine of 15 shots in the first period, while holding St. Charles to five of eight from the field and two of four at the foul line.

Stinson started the game by going high to tip in a missed Cardinal shot with 7:22 left in the first period. And, after Biff Bumgarner scored on a drive for the Tigers about 10 seconds later, Marquis Miller canned one from the corner and Hausfeld scored on a drive for a 6-2 St. Charles lead with 5:53 left.

But Hoskins moved inside for the Tigers and sparked the turn-around. Reed hit on two inside shots and McCoy popped one from the key with 4:08 remaining that gave the Tigers an 8-6 lead.

Reed scored again after a St. Charles free throw, but the Cardinals struck for three straight to tie the game 10-all with 2:35 to play.

That was the spark Circleville needed as the Tigers got two scores from Reed and a basket each by Moore and Hoskins to forge the 18-12 first-period lead.

Circleville kept the pressure on in the second period, hitting six of 14 shots from the floor and four of five at the line while holding St. Charles without a basket in 10 tries and limiting them to six of nine free throws.

Brad Spangler came in to spell Moore, who picked up an early third foul, and Mancini reported in for McCoy, who was whistled for his fourth foul with 2:03 remaining in the half.

Reed, who scored eight Tiger points in the period, started things off with a driving lay-up and two free throws before Miller hit two foul shots for St. Charles.

But Hoskins scored two drives around a pair of Spangler free throws for a 14-point 28-14 lead.

St. Charles cut the lead to 10 with four straight free throws, but the offered rebates of up to $600 until Feb. 28 to spark interest in purchasing cars. The costly and short-lived strategy boosted sales of models carrying the special discounts but did not generate interest in other lines as the firms had hoped.

The companies are now concerned that the rebate plans may have taken away sales from the spring months by enticing buyers who would have waited until March, April or May to visit their dealers.

Victor Warrington, a Topeka, Kan., Oldsmobile dealer, suggested another problem that may be keeping customers away:

"I am afraid that a lot of buyers are hesitating to buy now because they think there is going to be another rebate program. Like one of my customers who wants to buy a Cutlass. He thinks that if the factory did it once it will do it again."

As a result, several dealers are offering their own rebates to stimulate sales. In the Cleveland area, 154 Ford dealers are giving $300 rebates on the midsize Elite, and a GM dealer in the Pittsburgh area is offering $300 rebates on full-size Chevrolets.

"We can't wait for anybody else to do this for us," said Herb Worthy, sales manager of the Chevrolet agency in McKeesport, Pa.

Industry analysts expect a sales lull in March, when warm weather and income tax refund checks normally kick off a midyear sales upturn.

Another lull during the industry's worst slump since World War II could mean more worker layoffs as companies cut production in line with declining sales.

Because of the sales gains from the rebates, the companies are boosting production modestly this month and will have more plants open and more people on the job this week than at any time this year.

Even so, 215,000 of the industry's 683,000 workers remain on layoff, and production is expected to hit a 14-year low for March.

Tax Cut Seen Certain, But Form Remains Cloudy

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congress is virtually certain to approve a tax cut of at least $21 billion within two or three weeks, but the final version could differ sharply from the bill passed by the House.

Several senators are pointing to the high unemployment rate and urging a tax cut in the range of $26 billion to $35 billion, compared with the $21.3 billion approved by the House. The Senate Finance Committee resumes hearings on the tax cut today.

Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey, D-Minn., said Sunday on CBS' "Face the Nation" that he hopes action can be completed on the tax cut by the start of the scheduled Easter recess on March 21. If action hasn't been completed by then, there should be no recess, Humphrey said.

Some conservatives are using the Ford administration's argument that the House tax cut plan aims comparatively too much tax relief for families making under $10,000 a year. They say any tax cut designed to fight recession must provide more relief to families in the $10,000-to-$40,000 range — the families that would spend their rebate checks on cars and appliances to stimulate the economy.

The House-passed bill provides a $200 maximum on 1974-tax rebates, which gradually diminish in higher tax brackets. In addition, the bill would reduce 1975 taxes through lower withholding rates.

Ford's proposed rebate would be a flat 12 per cent with a ceiling of $1,000, which would be reached by taxpayers in the $40,000-plus bracket of adjusted gross income.

Sen. Russell B. Long, chairman of the tax-writing Finance Committee, challenges the whole concept of rebates. Instead of mailing out tax rebates to almost everyone, it might be better to concentrate the money where it would do the most good, Long argues.

The Louisiana Democrat suggests that instead of spending $8.1 billion for rebates, the government should provide a tax credit of 5 or 10 per cent to families that buy homes or new cars.

Such a move would provide dramatic aid to two of the nation's most depressed industries, and the effect could be a quick shot-in-the-arm for the entire economy, Long says.

Ford has proposed a $16-billion tax cut and has not stated whether he would accept a bigger one. Presidential Assistant Donald H. Rumsfeld, appearing Sunday on NBC's "Meet the Press," also declined to speculate on whether Ford would approve a larger tax cut. Ford would have to weigh the size of the cut against any actions taken by Congress toward controlling federal spending, Rumsfeld said.

How quickly the bill is passed and the effects felt by American businesses and families likely will depend on how persistent congressional liberals will be in their effort to take away a tax break enjoyed by the oil companies.

When the House passed the tax cut, it attached an amendment repealing the oil depletion allowance retroactive to Jan. 1. Senate conservatives have promised an extensive fight to retain the depletion allowance.

The depletion allowance authorizes producers and holders of oil property to deduct for tax purposes 22 per cent of their income from oil operations. This saves the industry about $2.5 billion a year in taxes.

19 States Eye Tax Increases

By LOUISE COOK
Associated Press Writer

While Congress is talking about a tax cut to stimulate the economy, governors or legislators in 19 states already have proposed tax increases to help balance budgets for the coming fiscal year.

An Associated Press survey of all 50 states showed 28 states will finish the fiscal year ending June 30 with a surplus in the treasury. But officials say inflation is eating away at the extra money and costs are rising faster than revenues.

Some sort of change in the tax structure — either an increase or decrease — is a possibility in 30 of the 50 states.

Here are some specifics:

—Increases only are proposed in 16 states.

—Increases and decreases are proposed in three states.

—Decreases only are proposed in eight states.

—Tax adjustments are proposed in two states and an increase proposal is under consideration in Florida.

Oklahoma legislators already have passed tax cut bills proposed by Gov. David Boren and South Dakota legislators killed the only major tax proposal: a boost recommended by the governor. Officials in the remaining 18 states say no tax proposals are pending.

The tax proposals come in many varieties — increases in gasoline taxes, extension of sales levies, introduction of income taxes. They frequently are coupled with promises to cut state spending.

Vermont Gov. Thomas P. Salmon, a Democrat who faces an $11 million deficit on the current budget, has recommended a tax program to increase revenues by $11 million for fiscal 1976. His over-all spending plan of $163 million is about $1 million less than the current budget.

Most of the extra revenues would come from extending the 3 per cent sales tax to gasoline and diesel fuel, tobacco products, advertising services and all alcoholic beverages except beer. Salmon also wants to boost the 5 per cent tax on rooms and meals to 6 per cent.

To reduce spending, the governor plans to eliminate driver education programs in schools, lay off 125 of the state's 6,000 public employees and close a prison.

California Gov. Edmund Brown Jr., a Democrat, has promised there will be no tax increase in the coming year. His analysts estimate there will be a surplus of $552 million at the end of the current fiscal year and Brown's proposed budget for fiscal 1976 projects a $574.2 million surplus on June 30, 1976.

Brown and his aides warn, however, that the surplus could be eaten up by inflation, increased expenditures because of recession, and cutbacks in federal spending.

The governor says people must "lower their expectations of what state governments can do." He cut dental services available to 2.3 million California residents on Medi-Cal, the state health program for the needy, reducing the number of visits allowed and other items.

Brown also cut his own staff salaries and office budget by 7 per cent, eliminating former Gov. Ronald Reagan's leased executive jet and three paper shredders.

Connecticut Gov. Ella Grasso has proposed more than $183 million in tax increases for the coming fiscal year. The Democratic governor says the money is necessary to balance what she calls an "austerity" budget of $1.43 billion, about 4 per cent higher than the current budget. The state faces an $85 million deficit at the end of the current fiscal year.

The proposed tax increases would raise the sales tax from 6 to 7 per cent; boost the cigarette tax from 21 to 25 cents and the corporate income tax from 8 to 9 per cent.

State officials estimate the sales tax boost would cost the average individual $29 a year.

Michigan Gov. William Milliken, a Republican, has proposed increasing the state income tax from 3.9 to 4.6 per cent to offset the revenue lost as a result of the voters' repeal last November of the state sales tax on food and prescription drugs. A family earning $10,000 a year would pay $28 more a year if Milliken's plan is approved.

Milliken, faced with an anticipated deficit of $180 million for fiscal 1975, also has taken a 10 per cent cut in his $47,500 annual salary, has withdrawn his recommendations for pay hikes for top state officials and has ordered a 2 per cent spending cutback for state departments.

The 16 states in addition to Connecticut, Michigan and Vermont where tax increases have been proposed are: Alaska, Delaware, Georgia, Hawaii, Minnesota, Missouri,

Oklahoma legislators already have passed tax cut bills proposed by Gov. David Boren and South Dakota legislators killed the only major tax proposal: a boost recommended by the governor. Officials in the remaining 18 states say no tax proposals are pending.

The tax proposals come in many varieties — increases in gasoline taxes, extension of sales levies, introduction of income taxes. They frequently are coupled with promises to cut state spending.

Vermont Gov. Thomas P. Salmon, a Democrat who faces an $11 million deficit on the current budget, has recommended a tax program to increase revenues by $11 million for fiscal 1976. His over-all spending plan of $163 million is about $1 million less than the current budget.

Most of the extra revenues would come from extending the 3 per cent sales tax to gasoline and diesel fuel, tobacco products, advertising services and all alcoholic beverages except beer. Salmon also wants to boost the 5 per cent tax on rooms and meals to 6 per cent.

To reduce spending, the governor plans to eliminate driver education programs in schools, lay off 125 of the state's 6,000 public employees and close a prison.

California Gov. Edmund Brown Jr., a Democrat, has promised there will be no tax increase in the coming year. His analysts estimate there will be a surplus of $552 million at the end of the current fiscal year and Brown's proposed budget for fiscal 1976 projects a $574.2 million surplus on June 30, 1976.

Brown and his aides warn, however, that the surplus could be eaten up by inflation, increased expenditures because of recession, and cutbacks in federal spending.

The governor says people must "lower their expectations of what state governments can do." He cut dental services available to 2.3 million California residents on Medi-Cal, the state health program for the needy, reducing the number of visits allowed and other items.

Brown also cut his own staff salaries and office budget by 7 per cent, eliminating former Gov. Ronald Reagan's leased executive jet and three paper shredders.

Connecticut Gov. Ella Grasso has proposed more than $183 million in tax increases for the coming fiscal year. The Democratic governor says the money is necessary to balance what she calls an "austerity" budget of $1.43 billion, about 4 per cent higher than the current budget. The state faces an $85 million deficit at the end of the current fiscal year.

The proposed tax increases would raise the sales tax from 6 to 7 per cent; boost the cigarette tax from 21 to 25 cents and the corporate income tax from 8 to 9 per cent.

State officials estimate the sales tax boost would cost the average individual $29 a year.

Michigan Gov. William Milliken, a Republican, has proposed increasing the state income tax from 3.9 to 4.6 per cent to offset the revenue lost as a result of the voters' repeal last November of the state sales tax on food and prescription drugs. A family earning $10,000 a year would pay $28 more a year if Milliken's plan is approved.

Milliken, faced with an anticipated deficit of $180 million for fiscal 1975, also has taken a 10 per cent cut in his $47,500 annual salary, has withdrawn his recommendations for pay hikes for top state officials and has ordered a 2 per cent spending cutback for state departments.

The 16 states in addition to Connecticut, Michigan and Vermont where tax increases have been proposed are: Alaska, Delaware, Georgia, Hawaii, Minnesota, Missouri,

Common Market Summit Meet Opens

DUBLIN, Ireland (AP) — Government chiefs of the nine nations in the European Common Market open a two-day summit meeting today to discuss what inducements to offer the British people to stay in the Common Market.

They also are discussing the 35-nation European summit that the Soviet Union wants to hold.

In preparation for a referendum he is holding in June, Prime Minister Harold Wilson is seeking a reduction in the cost of Britain's membership in the European Economic Community. He hopes to get enough concessions to be able to recommend that the British people vote to stay in the Common Market.

However, French President Valery Giscard d'Estaing is expected to oppose several items in Wilson's package.

The nine leaders and their foreign ministers, meeting amid tight security in Dublin Castle, were also to consider regulations governing the purchase of dairy products from New Zealand, international energy issues, inflation and unemployment.

Another major item on the agenda is the Western demands for the windup of the 35-nation Conference on Security and Cooperation in Europe which has been under way for two years.

Soviet chief Leonid I. Brezhnev wants the long negotiations to end with a summit meeting to put the maximum official endorsement on the Soviet hegemony in Eastern Europe. In exchange for agreeing to this, the nine Common Market nations and their American and Canadian allies are seeking Soviet promises to:

—Permit changes in European frontiers — meaning the reunification of Germany — if they can be peacefully negotiated.

—Give advance notification of major troop movements.

—Allow more freedom for people and ideas to move between East and West.

Brezhnev would like the conference to open in Helsinki on May 8, the 30th anniversary of Germany's surrender in World War II. West European diplomats say this is too early. But Irish Foreign Minister Garret Fitzgerald, whose country holds the presidency of the Common Market for the first six months of 1975, says the United States, Britain and France are pretty well committed to holding the summit some time this year.

However, West Germany and some smaller countries that are not com-

Heavy Fighting Hits Central Highlands

SAIGON, South Vietnam (AP) — North Vietnamese tanks and infantry blasted into Ban Me Thuot before dawn today and battled defenders from house to house in the besieged provincial capital in the Central Highlands all day, field reports said.

Amid continuous heavy shelling, fighting was reported in the heart of the city of 166,000 as night came.

In Cambodia, the campaign to oust President Lon Nol gathered headway and the U. S. supply airlift continued despite the heaviest shelling of the Phnom Penh airport to date. Airline sources said a Cambodian airliner was set afire and two airport workers were killed, but no American planes were hit.

Ban Me Thuot, 155 miles northeast of Saigon, is the chief center for the mountain tribesmen known as Montagnards, many of whom fought for the U.S. Special Forces during America's war in Vietnam. All roads into the city were cut. One report said the North Vietnamese had taken one of the city's two airstrips and were attacking the main airfield, threatening the government's only route for supplies and reinforcements.

South Vietnamese military headquarters in Pleiku, the capital of the central highlands, claimed a dozen North Vietnamese tanks had been knocked out, including five in the city. But South Vietnamese pilots in Pleiku told Associated Press newsmen Huynh Minh Trinh they spotted at least 10 more tanks moving toward Ban Me Thuot from the northwest.

The headquarters claimed as many as 400 North Vietnamese troops were killed out of about 2,000 that launched a three-prong attack against the city. It is defended by an estimated 3,000 government troops who also are supported by tanks, informed sources said.

There was no report of government or civilian casualties.

Spokesmen said there was house-to-house fighting in a residential area on the southern edge of the city. They said the defenders had taken up defensive positions on rooftops.

Officials said the situation was serious.

mitted hope to bargain for more concessions.

U.S. officials put little faith in Soviet promises on such matters as easing of restrictions on emigration and travel, more freedom for foreign reporters to cover the Soviet Union and better access for Soviet-bloc citizens to Western books, newspapers and broadcasts. The Americans, along with the British and French, seem more interested in improving relations with the Soviets, particularly after the breakdown of the Soviet-American trade pact.

Marijuana Found; 4 Arrested

Nineteen-year-old Larry C. Evans, Xenia, and three 17-year-old Franklin County juveniles were arrested by Pickaway County Sheriff's Deputy James Dixon for possession of an hallucinogen, 11:10 p.m. Saturday while seen driving in a reckless manner on the East-Ringgold-Northern Road.

Deputy Dixon noticed the vehicle go off the berm of the road twice and then pull into a private drive. He then stopped to check the occupants for consuming alcohol in a motor vehicle.

Continuing a search of the auto, Dixon found two rolled cigarettes of marijuana on the front floorboard and two pipes used for smoking marijuana, in the glove compartment.

The four juveniles were taken to the county jail where Dixon took a statement from Evans who advised that all the occupants had been smoking marijuana prior to the apprehension.

Dixon charged Evans with possession of an hallucinogen and contributing to the unruliness of a juvenile.

One youth, from Canal Winchester, was arrested for intoxication, possession of an hallucinogen and permitting an unlicensed driver to operate a motor vehicle; the Columbus youth was charged with possession of an hallucinogen, driving while intoxicated and driving while license under suspension and a second youth from Canal Winchester was arrested for possession of an hallucinogen.

With spring work starting in the area, farmers are reminded there is an all-risk crop insurance available through Federal Crop Insurance Corporation, an agency of the United States Department of Agriculture.

Last season's unfavorable weather-prolonged drought, followed by an early frost — resulted in much crop loss in corn and soybeans. These are conditions for which farmers may be indemnified, along with hail, plant disease, insect damage and many other hazards.

However, French President Valery Giscard d'Estaing is expected to oppose several items in Wilson's package.

The nine leaders and their foreign ministers, meeting amid tight security in Dublin Castle, were also to consider regulations governing the purchase of dairy products from New Zealand, international energy issues, inflation and unemployment.

Another major item on the agenda is the Western demands for the windup of the 35-nation Conference on Security and Cooperation in Europe which has been under way for two years.

Soviet chief Leonid I. Brezhnev wants the long negotiations to end with a summit meeting to put the maximum official endorsement on the Soviet hegemony in Eastern Europe. In exchange for agreeing to this, the nine Common Market nations and their American and Canadian allies are seeking Soviet promises to:

—Permit changes in European frontiers — meaning the reunification of Germany — if they can be peacefully negotiated.

—Give advance notification of major troop movements.

—Allow more freedom for people and ideas to move between East and West.

Brezhnev would like the conference to open in Helsinki on May 8, the 30th anniversary of Germany's surrender in World War II. West European diplomats say this is too early. But Irish Foreign Minister Garret Fitzgerald, whose country holds the presidency of the Common Market for the first six months of 1975, says the United States, Britain and France are pretty well committed to holding the supersummit some time this year.

However, West Germany and some smaller countries that are not com-

Heavy Fighting Hits Central Highlands

SAIGON, South Vietnam (AP) — North Vietnamese tanks and infantry blasted into Ban Me Thuot before dawn today and battled defenders from house to house in the besieged provincial capital in the Central Highlands all day, field reports said.

Amid continuous heavy shelling, fighting was reported in the heart of the city of 166,000 as night came.

In Cambodia, the campaign to oust President Lon Nol gathered headway and the U. S. supply airlift continued despite the heaviest shelling of the Phnom Penh airport to date. Airline sources said a Cambodian airliner was set afire and two airport workers were killed, but no American planes were hit.

Ban Me Thuot, 155 miles northeast of Saigon, is the chief center for the mountain tribesmen known as Montagnards, many of whom fought for the U.S. Special Forces during America's war in Vietnam. All roads into the city were cut. One report said the North Vietnamese had taken one of the city's two airstrips and were attacking the main airfield, threatening the government's only route for supplies and reinforcements.

South Vietnamese military headquarters in Pleiku, the capital of the central highlands, claimed a dozen North Vietnamese tanks had been knocked out, including five in the city. But South Vietnamese pilots in Pleiku told Associated Press newsmen Huynh Minh Trinh they spotted at least 10 more tanks moving toward Ban Me Thuot from the northwest.

The headquarters claimed as many as 400 North Vietnamese troops were killed out of about 2,000 that launched a three-prong attack against the city. It is defended by an estimated 3,000 government troops who also are supported by tanks, informed sources said.

There was no report of government or civilian casualties.

Spokesmen said there was house-to-house fighting in a residential area on the southern edge of the city. They said the defenders had taken up defensive positions on rooftops.

Officials said the situation was serious.

mitted hope to bargain for more concessions.

U.S. officials put little faith in Soviet promises on such matters as easing of restrictions on emigration and travel, more freedom for foreign reporters to cover the Soviet Union and better access for Soviet-bloc citizens to Western books, newspapers and broadcasts. The Americans, along with the British and French, seem more interested in improving relations with the Soviets, particularly after the breakdown of the Soviet-American trade pact.

Open Letter

Dear Friends,

The funeral in the United States is basically a religious ceremony. Naturally the clergymen, as religious leaders in each community, perform a vital role in the funeral service.

Funeral directors and clergymen work together to provide a united service which clarifies the religious meaning of death and comforts the bereaved family and friends.

Marijuana Found; 4 Arrested

Nineteen-year-old Larry C. Evans, Xenia, and three 17-year-old Franklin County juveniles were arrested by Pickaway County Sheriff's Deputy James Dixon for possession of an hallucinogen, 11:10 p.m. Saturday while seen driving in a reckless manner on the East-Ringgold-Northern Road.

Deputy Dixon noticed the vehicle go off the berm of the road twice and then pull into a private drive. He then stopped to check the occupants for consuming alcohol in a motor vehicle.

Continuing a search of the auto, Dixon found two rolled cigarettes of marijuana on the front floorboard and two pipes used for smoking marijuana, in the glove compartment.

The four juveniles were taken to the county jail where Dixon took a statement from Evans who advised that all the occupants had been smoking marijuana prior to the apprehension.

Dixon charged Evans with possession of an hallucinogen and contributing to the unruliness of a juvenile.

One youth, from Canal Winchester, was arrested for intoxication, possession of an hallucinogen and permitting an unlicensed driver to operate a motor vehicle; the Columbus youth was charged with possession of an hallucinogen, driving while intoxicated and driving while license under suspension and a second youth from Canal Winchester was arrested for possession of an hallucinogen.

Crop Insurance Now Available

With spring work starting in the area, farmers are reminded there is an all-risk crop insurance available through Federal Crop Insurance Corporation, an agency of the United States Department of Agriculture.

Last season's unfavorable weather-prolonged drought, followed by an early frost — resulted in much crop loss in corn and soybeans. These are conditions for which farmers may be indemnified, along with hail, plant disease, insect damage and many other hazards.

Fieldmen Charles Filligner and Henry Dickey have been assigned to assist farm operators in Pickaway County area for crop year 1975.

Fillinger or Dickey may be reached by contacting the office at 27 1/2 S. Detroit St., Xenia. Their telephone number is 513-372-5001.

Applications for 1975 corn and soybeans will be accepted through May 10. However, Sam Baldwin, sales supervisor, cautions sales may be closed at an earlier time should adverse factors develop.

A Page Of Opinion

Smokers Reminded

After many years of being relegated to second class status, nonsmokers finally are coming into their own. In the last few years they have come a long way from the days when a voiced objection to the irritations produced by a smoking neighbor would produce either a derisive comment or a cloud of smoke.

No smoking signs are appearing with more frequency in public places. Special smoking sections in public transportation have become the norm.

It isn't a case of taking away the rights of the smoker. That right never should have extended to forcing nonsmokers to cough and wheeze simply because some smokers were too inconsiderate to keep their habits to themselves.

Nonsmokers have had their cause aided by science. A 1972 surgeon general's report startled some people by pointing out that a smoke-filled room or vehicle could contain a carbon monoxide level of 80 to 90 parts per million, whereas occupational safety standards set 50 parts per million as the maximum acceptable.

What personal habits like smoking boil down to is consideration and good manners. Those who don't have them need to be reminded of the fact.

Empty Racing Stands

ON THE LINE
By BOB CONSIDINE

NEW YORK — The strike of the pari-mutuel people at Roosevelt Raceway, New York's glittering horse-and-buggy gambling hell, did not last very long. But while it lasted it presented a somewhat chilling glimpse of what might lay ahead in sports.

The harness track was closed to the public, but the usual nine races were run because nearly $1,000,000 had been set in the area's Off-Track Betting parlors. Not a sound from the grandstand and clubhouse, not even the sizzle of a hot dog. Just the buzz every half hour of pounding hooves, whirring wheels, a bit of tongue clucking, the snap of whips, and the soft moans of the chief stockholders of the parent corporation, Madison Square Garden. The striking ticket employees were asking for $66 a night.

A thought must have occurred here and there: Who needs people? Why not do it this way all the time? Think of the money the track would save if it fired the ticket blouses, sold the stands, demolished the infield "board," bounced all the guards and ushers, dismantled the kitchens, and chased the car-parkers. Who needs anything but a track, a small stampede of dumb horses named Hanover Somebody, and maybe a dozen listless old coots to yell giddy-up?

It was Mike Jacobs who, fed up with the huge costs (legal and otherwise) of producing a heavyweight title fight, predicted in the 1930s that there would come a day when the two gladiators would fight it out in a $10 New York hotel room with nobody present except their handlers, the referee, the two judges, and, of course, one of those then newfangled television cameras.

The camera would squirt a picture of the fight into movie theaters and sport arenas all across the country, and the "gate," Mike said with a happy clatter of his loose upper plate, might gross $25,000,000. At that time only a handful of fights had done a million dollars. Mike saw a quantum leap in the offing. It came later when the development of communications satellites enabled promoters to stage title fights in places as remote as Zaire.

Maybe the shade of Mike Jacobs and the haunting experience of Roosevelt Raceway will continue to spook the realm of sports. Look out the fans, might be the cry of the future: lock 'em out, rid the promoters of that big overhead, turn on the cameras, bet through your credit card, and watch the action on your wrist-TV while playing tennis 2,500 miles from the eerie battle.

Robert Moses, lecturer at Fordham University, said, "I have reservations about the approaching Bicentennial. A Bicentennial is very much like a World's Fair. It is a philanthropy not a business, and yet big business support is indispensable because this is still an age of invention and industry as well as art and nature.

"If a Fair is worth a damn, it can't end with a surplus. It is a failure unless the supercilious, left wing critics call it a disaster. In the end, the results are measured by the parks and permanent improvements it leaves behind which are practical rather than reminiscent."

"Here in New York I would settle for the rescue, restoration and improvement of the Hall of Fame of Great Americans, because I see little else being planned but Barnum and Bailey ballyhoo and patriotic nostalgia. The greatest successes in the 1964-1965 Fair (New York) were Michelangelo's Pieta and General Motors. The Pieta will be remembered by those who can't get to Rome long after all else is forgotten. Put it this way: Is our Bicentennial to be a ballyhoo and retrospect or a record of two centuries of achievement and a promise of early revival and

Dear Editor:

I have read with displeasure the numerous letters from our socialist citizen, Elias John George.

On Saturday his attack on our educational system was totally uncalled for. Our country spends a larger per cent of its money for education than any other country in the world. In socialist (communist) countries, education is allocated according to the needs of the state. A student's desires are sublimated to the states needs.

Mr. George also talks about how much better life is under socialism. He mentions communist countries Russia, China, North Korea and North Vietnam to name a few. I'm sure he would enjoy living there much more than here in the USA. If he wrote letters to the editor in those countries that disagreed with the communist line he would be shot and the newspaper editor along with him. His sojourn in a communist state would teach him a lot and would be appreciated by many Circleville citizens.

On Tuesday Mr. George pointed out how well Russia has advanced since its revolution at the close of World War I.

It starved its people in 5-year-plans until World War II. It then became a partner of Hitler in the partition of Poland. It finally overcame the little country of Finland with less than 4 million people, although it was about all that 200 million Russians could do.

Then Hitler broke with Stalin and invaded Russia. Large areas of Russia were overrun. Finally, with American lend-lease (which has never been repaid) plus the overextended German supply lines, the Nazi advance was stopped and thrown back. From a military standpoint, the wonder of the whole Russia War Front was not the Russians stopping the Germans but the fact the Germans could penetrate Russia as far as they did.

Since World War II, Russia has left the world on the edge of total war, and by necessitating huge military expenditures all over the world has lowered the standard of living of all mankind.

Russia is still unable to feed its people but relies on buying millions of tons of food from the United States on low interest long term loans which it won't pay back.

It appears that Mr. George gets carried away sometimes and gets a bit reckless with the facts.

Dear Editor:

What made America Great?

An editorial written by Henry Taylor stated it was in direct parallel to our reverence toward God.

Capitalism (with all its faults) offers mankind a better chance for development and to express one's individuality more than any other form of Government.

All we have to do is to take a glance at countries ruled by a Communist or a Socialist Government to see the truth in this statement.

In the most recent issue of "U. S. News & World Report," projections for the future were made but, the total analysis depended upon man's will.

Morality cannot be legislated under any guise or form of Government. "The heart is deceitful above all things, and wickedly wicked: who can know it?" — Jeremiah 17:9.

If Utopia could be attained in this world by or through a philosophy, ideology or a form of Government, it ultimately would be good only for the short lifespan of man.

Soon we Christians will be celebrating an event that took place almost 2000 years ago on Golgotha hill. Jesus the Christ spilled his precious blood for mankind, thereby giving us real hope; three days later we will be celebrating the Resurrection. Christ defeating death! He promises eternal life to all that will receive him. He speaks of a land where the sun never sets, no sorrow, no heartache, where the hillsides are not dotted with graveyards and an eternity to enjoy it!

"But as it is written, Eye hath not seen nor ear heard, neither have entered into the heart of man, the things which God hath prepared for them that love him." 1 Corinthians 2:0.

Anyone accepting less would indeed be selling oneself short.

Speaking Of Your Health

by Lester L. Coleman, M.D.

I have been putting off having a sigmoidoscopy. I hear it is very painful. Is there some other way that the rectum can be studied?

Mrs. J. V., R.I.

Dear Mrs. V.:

The "authority" who told you that a sigmoidoscopy is painful did you an injustice. You have put off a simple examination that obviously was suggested to you by your doctor.

A sigmoidoscopy is gently and painlessly performed. The sigmoidoscope is inserted into the rectum to enable the doctor to examine minute areas of the rectum for ulcerations, polyps, inflammation and infection.

Through the instrument, small pieces of tissue can be removed for microscopic examination. There is no better way to study the rectum than by this method.

Other areas of the large bowel which cannot be reached with the sigmoidoscope are studied by barium enema X-rays.

The slight discomfort of this office procedure is more than compensated by the valuable information that is obtained.

It is pointless for you to put off this examination because of misinformation.

Does syphilis occur in people over 40?

Mr. R. R., Mo.

Dear Mr. R.:

The promise that penicillin would eradicate completely this scourge of mankind has not been fulfilled.

Syphilis still ranges in epidemic form in young adolescents and adults. No one is immune to syphilis if direct contact is made with a person infected with the germ.

No sex, no age, no social or economic level, no race is free from the possibility of contracting syphilis.

The reason why syphilis occurs less frequently in middle-aged persons is that mature people have more years of education and are more sensible about seeking early advice for medical treatment. They are also less promiscuous than young people.

SPEAKING OF YOUR HEALTH . . .

A Little Statue

By JIM BISHOP

Mike Mulligan is gone, but we were friends for a time and sat in the rectory of St. Henry's in Bayonne, N.J., swapping stories. He was a white-haired monsignor built like a pious wrestler. If I was in a mood to arouse him, all I had to do was to ask him about his mother and her little lead statue of St. Joseph.

It cost two cents a hundred years ago and wasn't much bigger than the knuckle on Mike's thumb. In Ireland, she had been a devout communicant, but she needed a statue to pray to. The Catholic Church teaches that a statue is merely a statue and cannot help anyone.

Statues are used to "remind" the petitioner of the real saint, who is in heaven sorting the prayers floating up. Mike's mother brought the tiny statue to America and reminded it that if the ship sank in a storm, he'd drown with her.

She met an Irishman named Mulligan and married him and moved to Clinton, N.J. Her husband worked in a stone quarry. Children came along and when they did well she opened a bureau drawer, took out the statue of St. Joseph and said, "Ye'er a good man and I thank you."

When bad times occurred at the quarry, it was usually in the dead of winter. Mr. Mulligan would be laid off. He would groom, water and feed his team of dray horses and walk home with his head down.

Secretly, Mrs. Mulligan took St. Joseph out of the warm bureau drawer, tied a piece of white string around his neck, and nailed him in a hanging position outside the bedroom window.

"And there you'll stay," she would tell him, "until my man finds work again." St. Joseph took an awful beating. The night winter winds would swing him away from the window and smash him back against the frame.

"What's the noise?" Mr. Mulligan would say. "Tis nothing," she would answer. "The wind I would say. Go to sleep." When the quarry reopened, Mr. Mulligan returned to work and St. Joseph got a suspended sentence. She was a tiny woman with a strong will. The string was taken off Joseph's neck and she placed him back in the drawer. "It took ye a dom long time, God forgive me," she would say.

The father and the children pointed out the fallacy of using a two-penny lead statue for heavenly petitions. Mrs. Mulligan would have none of it. "You don't believe in it. I do. St. Joseph and I have a long-term agreement. Someday, with his help, we're going to own this house we live in, and one of our boys will be consecrated a priest."

The Mulligans surrendered. And yet she of the enormous faith had the last smile. She scrimped and saved and hid money in jars. The time came in 1896 when she bought the house. She thanked St. Joseph and wrapped him in white flannel.

Mike was a good student and told his father that he would like to attend a seminary to see if he would make a proper priest. Mrs. Mulligan, in the kitchen, dried her hands and went to the bedroom and kissed St. Joseph on top of his head. "You kept your word," she said.

Mike attended seminary, got lucky, and went to the North American College in Rome. His degree was Doctor of Divinity. He was ordained in 1904 and sent to St. Michael's Church in Jersey City. He asked everybody not to call him father; "Doctor will do."

Later, he was assigned to St. Henry's in Bayonne and became pastor. It's a big, beautiful church surrounded by a kelly green lawn. He bought a pipe organ for $25,000 and sent a car to Clinton to bring his mother to his church.

She loved it. Mike told her he had no school. They walked down Avenue C. A short distance away there was a beautiful public school. "If only we had the money to have a school like this," he said wistfully. Mrs. Mulligan stamped her little feet on the earth between the sidewalk and the curb. "You'll have it, Michael," she said. "It won't be like this one. It'll be this very school."

Mike patted her hand. "Impossible," he said sadly. Years went by. About 18, in fact, Mike was a monsignor. His hair was as white as his mother's. His father had died; his sister Mary lived with Mrs. Mulligan.

The politicians of Bayonne had a problem. There had been a population shift and they had a school with very few students. Brazenly, Mike hurried to City Hall and made a minimum offer for the building.

He got it. He was in his age and his mother was far beyond him. But he brought her in from Clinton and helped her to totter to the school. "It is ours," he said humbly. "Mother it is our school."

The old lady smiled and bent down and scuffed the dirt near the curb. She found the little statue, dusted it off, and murmured, "You have done the last thing I'll ask of you. Now, after all these years, you can come home with me" . . .

Kindness Promotes Road Work

CINCINNATI, Ohio (AP) — U.S. Rep. Thomas Kindness, R-Ohio, plans to introduce legislation in Congress next week to set aside, for three years, environmental impact statements holding up road building projects.

"I believe such legislation will free up those projects which are being held up only by environmental impact studies," said the freshman congressman.

"I believe that the impact statements have been shown to slow down projects about three years."

The 8th District congressman said he was not against environmental impact statements, however, only their present form.

Kindness said he would ask the White House to look into the current formulation of the impact statements which must be completed before construction contracts can be let.

A moratorium on them would mean more employment if Congress passes funds for increased highway construction, he said, adding he believes Congress was ready to do so.

Several projects in southern Ohio currently are held up awaiting the environmental studies, he said.

four of their Bicentennial series.

Phase four was based on the American economy. The program was presented in two open quadrants at the McDowell Building and involved 400 students, 30 staff members and four guest speakers.

The guest speakers were Robert Wood, treasure of Pickaway County; Verne Frasure, vice president of Hocking Valley National Bank; Larry Plum, Circleville Insurance Agent, Beverly Bechtel, home economics specialist.

The program covered a variety of economic topics. Students were given the opportunity to choose from a selection of 20 programs presented by staff members.

According to chairman Harry Hoffer and Dean Barr, three more phases of the Bicentennial program will be completed this school year. They are: the History of the American Cinema, on April 11; Green Parks Bicentennial, a singing group from Ohio University; a bus trip to Columbus for McDowell American History students to visit the Freedom Train on May 22.

The McDowell Bicentennial observances began last fall with its Chief Logan program, correlated with the Pickaway County Historical Society's Chief Logan Day.

Food Stamp Word Getting Out

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — "That wasn't a typical call," said welfare worker Cathy Elkins, plopping down the state's food stamp hot-line phone.

A typical call, she said takes about five minutes.

This one had gone on for nearly a quarter-hour, with Ms. Elkins, who uses the title by preference, filling nearly a page with figures as she patiently helped the woman caller determine if her family qualified for food stamps.

"It's always worth the time," she said, still cheery after almost a day of fielding questions. "I would say about 80 per cent of the time we find a person is eligible."

Since "Day One," as Ms. Elkins and the two other hot-line operators refer to the Feb. 11 launching of the toll-free service, the wires have been jammed with about 150 calls a day.

Between 8 a.m. and 6 p.m., Monday through Friday, callers can dial 1-800-282-1190 and find out everything they always wanted to know about food stamps—what the requirements are, where application centers are, what documents are needed to apply.

The U.S. Department of Agriculture, households must meet nationwide eligibility standards, income and work registration to qualify for food stamp benefits. Food stamp households usually must be able to prepare meals.

"The problem is there are lots of people out there who are eligible for food stamps and don't know it," said Ms. Elkins.

She and her staff are preparing radio and television announcements and newspaper advertisements to cope with this problem.

She has submitted a plan calling for field workers to deal directly with such hard-pressed groups in the state as the elderly, migrant workers and Appalachian families.

Art Robinson, the department's public affairs director, said citizen groups filed a suit asking that food stamp information be more widely distributed. A federal court agreed.

"Our biggest problem in carrying out the order is money," he said. "Our estimate is that the hot-line alone will cost $40,000 a year. And staffing field workers will run another $50,000 a year."

Ms. Elkins said she wants to reach the largest number of potentially eligible persons while getting the most out of the state's money.

"Where we are now is a good beginning," she said. "Check us out again in another month."

Food Stamp Word Getting Out

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—"That wasn't a typical call," said welfare worker Cathy Elkins, plopping down the state's food stamp hot-line phone. A typical call, she said takes about five minutes.

This one had gone on for nearly a quarter-hour, with Ms. Elkins, who uses the title by preference, filling nearly a page with figures as she patiently helped the woman caller determine if her family qualified for food stamps.

"It's always worth the time," she said, still cheery after almost a day of fielding questions. "I would say about 80 per cent of the time we find a person is eligible."

Since "Day One," as Ms. Elkins and the two other hot-line operators refer to the Feb. 11 launching of the toll-free service, the wires have been jammed with about 150 calls a day.

Between 8 a.m. and 6 p.m., Monday through Friday, callers can dial 1-800-282-1190 and find out everything they always wanted to know about food stamps—what the requirements are, where application centers are, what documents are needed to apply.

The U.S. Department of Agriculture, households must meet nationwide eligibility standards, income and work registration to qualify for food stamp benefits. Food stamp households usually must be able to prepare meals.

"The problem is there are lots of people out there who are eligible for food stamps and don't know it," said Ms. Elkins.

She and her staff are preparing radio and television announcements and newspaper advertisements to cope with this problem.

She has submitted a plan calling for field workers to deal directly with such hard-pressed groups in the state as the elderly, migrant workers and Appalachian families.

Art Robinson, the department's public affairs director, said citizen groups filed a suit asking that food stamp information be more widely distributed. A federal court agreed.

"Our biggest problem in carrying out the order is money," he said. "Our estimate is that the hot-line alone will cost $40,000 a year. And staffing field workers will run another $50,000 a year."

Ms. Elkins said she wants to reach the largest number of potentially eligible persons while getting the most out of the state's money.

"Where we are now is a good beginning," she said. "Check us out again in another month."

Sykes-Grate Wedding Vows Exchanged In Ringgold Church

MR. AND MRS. DON GRATE

Candelabra decorated with white satin bows and streamers, provided the light in Ringgold United Methodist Church for the wedding of Miss Linda Sykes and Mr. Don Grate. White satin bows marked the pews.

The Rev. Donald C. Makarius performed the double ring ceremony for the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clariol Sykes, Route 5, Circleville, and the son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Grate, Route 2, Laurelville.

Prenuptial selections were presented by Miss Darlene Neff, organist and Miss Karen Spangler, vocalist.

The bride was given in marriage by her father. She was attired in a victorian style gown with long sleeves featuring deep cuffs, a high neckline and a soft ruffle at the hemline. Antique lace inserts enhanced the sleeves and front yoke, edged with a tiny soft ruffle. The gown was of simulated ivory slipper satin with a bouffant matching veil held with a headpiece of fresh pink rosebuds and baby's breath in the form of a crown. She carried a cascade bouquet of pink rosebuds, holly and ivy. Her only jewelry was an antique cameo and gold bracelet, a gift from the bridegroom's grandmother.

Miss Helen White of Circleville was maid of honor in a burgundy velvet gown in the victorian style with a square yoke in antique lace and long sleeves. She carried a nosegay of pink rosebuds, baby's breath, holly and pink satin ribbon.

Mr. Kelly McClain of Columbus served as best man, and ushers were brothers of the bride, Mr. Steve Sykes and Mr. Tom Sykes.

For her daughter's wedding Mrs. Sykes chose a pale pink long sleeved princess style gown. She wore a corsage of pink carnations and holly.

Mrs. Grate wore a pale aqua long sleeved gown in princess lines and a corsage matching that of Mrs. Sykes.

A reception in the Service Center of Good Shepherd United Methodist Church followed the ceremony. Hostesses were the Misses, Sandy Hill, Kathy Hill and Arlene Peters.

Following a wedding trip to Daytona Beach, Fla., the couple resides at Route 2, Laurelville.

The new Mrs. Grate is a graduate of Logan Elm High School and is employed as a secretary by the Logan Elm Board of Education at Washington Twp. School.

Mr. Grate, also a graduate of Logan Elm High School is currently attending Hocking Technical College.

Out-of-town guests at the wedding were from Columbus, Grove City, Worthington, Hebron, Chillicothe, Laurelville, Williamsport, Ashville, Adelphi and Tarlton.

Bi-Centennial Commission Receiving Support From County Women's Clubs

Bi-Centennial Women's Organizations met in two sessions for orientation, Feb. 24th and March 3rd at the chamber of Commerce office. Mrs. Jim Ullman, chairman of Womens Organizations, was in charge.

Walton Spangler, Ned Harden and Mrs. Don Miller of the Pickaway County Bi-Centennial Commission were present to give an overall picture of plans for the next 22 months.

Represented were 34 organizations. There have been 43 contacted and each person was asked to check any club they belong to and if they have not been contacted to notify the Chamber office or Mrs. Ullman. The Logo Contest was won by a member, Mrs. Dean Barr of Ashville.

Each club was asked to participate, by choosing a project in keeping with the theme "Heritage." These projects are to be presented to the chairman and in turn be presented by her to the steering commission to eliminate any duplication.

All clubs are to have a history of their club written. And any pictures possible. All pictures will be returned and Mr. Harden will be happy to make reprints. These will be used in the Bi-Centennial Library. These will also be the source of information our news media will use. Both the radio and newspaper have agreed to feature a Club Weekly.

The project for the entire Womens Group will be erecting a monument to Grenadier Squaw. This has been approved by the steering commission. A committee will be formed at a later date to choose and plan the date for this project. Perhaps this will be one of our final events for the celebration.

Each delegate was urged to return to the next club meeting, presenting their notes and to begin immediately forming plans.

Delegates were asked to promote the flying of the flag, by all members, daily. Those, who have space, erect a flag pole. Teach your children the proper way to raise and lower a flag, and the accomplishment of folding the flag correctly. What a beautiful sight to see, flag waving from every home in Pickaway Co. If you know of some one that needs help in erecting a bracket for a flag, this could be part of a project or just a good deed, for the day.

As a family, research and write your family history. Get the teenagers involved. Visits to folk that you have long planned to do can be twofold, and calling on aged persons in your neighborhood for a discussion of events and happenings, can be a very interesting visit for you as well as the one you visit.

We, also ask that you make a note of any item or place that has a story with it, no matter how small or silly you may think it to be, and give to the community. Perhaps it has been overlooked or not known and can be recorded in our history. We are writing the history today for our grandchildren, 50 years from now.

Projects in the planning stages are: making of dresses, costumes, etc. for sale at events and festivals; Pickaway County Tour of Homes; marking of all historic sites as a scenic tour, with a brochure; window displays; arts and crafts in actual making.

This is the very small part of the many, many projects the various chairmen have planned under their respective categories.

New Surgery Offers Hope To Impotent

DEAR ABBY: I am a physician who reads your column in the Houston Post. A 40-year-old woman wrote to say that after four months of marriage she was still a virgin due to impotence on the part of her husband.

Your answer: "If it's physical, you have two choices—continue in a marriage without sex, or get an annulment."

From your answer, you obviously are not aware of the fact that recently a small device has been developed that can be surgically implanted into the male organ of men who are unable to effect an erection. With this device, the patient (or his partner) is able to pump fluid into the organ, thus producing an erection at will and for as long as desired.

Although the majority of our cases are men who are impotent due to physical reasons, we have also treated men whose impotence was due to psychological reason.

This work is presently being done at various medical centers in the U.S. as well as in Europe, although it was initiated at St. Luke's Episcopal Hospital in Houston, Texas. Because this is such a new development, I realize why it has not become a part of your knowledge.

Should this letter be published, please do not use my name for ethical reason so that my letter can in no manner be construed as an advertisement for patients.

HOUSTON UROLOGIST
DEAR UROLOGIST: Because my mail has brought me so many letters from readers who need and would appreciate this information, I am publishing your letter. I recommend that those who are interested in learning more about this surgical procedure consult their local urologists. And for further information write to St. Luke's Episcopal Hospital, Department of Urology, Box 20269, Houston, Texas, 77025.

DEAR ABBY: In reference to first cousins who wish to marry and apparently could not do so legally in the state where they lived, such marriages are permitted by the laws of New York and many other states.

A more curious question: "Can an uncle marry a niece, or an aunt marry a nephew?" A few Latin American countries permit such marriages, and in the U.S.A., the laws of Georgia provide that any marriage permitted by the law of the Levites (Leviticus XVIII) is legal in that state.

Under the law of the Levites, a marriage between a man and the daughter of his sister is permitted. However, the marriage of a man with the daughter of his brother, and a marriage between a woman and her nephew are prohibited.

H.N.N. (N.Y. ATTORNEY)

DEAR ATTORNEY: What you are saying is that a man may marry his niece, but a woman may not marry her nephew: a law which had its origin in the Old Testament.

DEAR ABBY: You have had letters about illegitimate children. May I add my two cents worth?

My parents were adults, well over the age of consent, when they entered into a love affair that would eventually produce me. My father was in the Navy and due to ship out when he learned of my impending arrival. He felt that under the circumstances he didn't want the responsibility of a wife and child, so he boarded the ship and was never heard from again.

My mother realized her mistake, but she courageously faced the problems that all unwed mothers must face, and she decided to keep me.

She later married a fine man who adopted me, and now I have a whole passel of brothers and sisters whom I love.

I wish my natural father only happiness and good fortune. I sincerely hope that the years have been kind to him, and have given him a family to love. I will not look for him, as his mistake is now over 30 years old, and I don't want to cause him any embarrassment.

When I was 18, mother told me of the circumstances surrounding my birth, which I consider of little importance. I feel no guilt about the mistake of my parents. I was given a life, and what I do with that life is far more important to me than how I got here.

I am now happily married to a kind and loving man and we have children of our own. We don't have a lot of money, but we are rich in other ways. We have love. And in this life, no one has a right to ask for more. Sign me . . .

BLESSED

Health Department Marks Poison Prevention Week

Tommy, a curious, toddling two-year old, found the white milky fluid "under the kitchen sink" especially tempting and attractive.

Within seconds, Tommy's mouth had reached the top of the container, quickly drawing the fluid into his system. By late afternoon, Tommy's mother saw her son staggering, breathing uneasily, and rushed him to a nearby Poison Control Center.

Unfortunately, Tommy's symptoms are not uncommon, as over 500,000 children a year swallow potentially poisonous products found in their homes — about 400 of these children will die.

Tommy was luckier than some. The doctors at the Center diagnosed Tommy's condition as an insecticide poisoning, and were able to administer

Bass Pleads Innocent To Theft Charges

Dana Bass, former manager of 600-acre Malabar Farm near Mansfield, entered a plea of innocent to charges of theft at his arraignment Friday in Richland County Common Pleas Court.

Bass, a native of Circleville, has been accused of selling cattle from the state-owned farm and keeping the funds.

Malabar is the farm-home of the late Louis Bromfield, famous author and conservationist. It was donated to the state in 1972 for restoration and use as a public facility.

Purdy President Of Fraternal Council

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Lawrence Purdy of Akron, representing the Hibernians, was elected president of the Ohio Council of Fraternal and Service Organization Saturday during the group's annual meeting.

Gene Fournace of Canton, a senior vice president of the Ohio Power Co. and past grand exalted ruler of the Elks, was named Fraternalist of the Year.

'Popper's Penguins' Are Based On Real-Life Birds

Roundtown Players' forthcoming children's production "Mr. Popper's Penguins" is a comedy with a scientific touch.

The play will be presented March 15 and 16 at 2 and 4 p.m. at Memorial Hall.

Playwrite Rosemary Musil apparently has been accurate in her characterizations of the penguins, providing playgoers with an opportunity to learn about these unusual birds while being entertained.

Although there are 17 different species of penguins, the fact that Mr. Popper receives the first of his brood directly from Admiral Drake in Antarctica indicates that the 16 children dressed in penguin costumes must be portraying either the Adelie or the Emperor variety, the only two species which live in Antarctica.

While costume chairman Dee Currie has designed the uniforms with black backs and heads and white fronts to resemble the Adelie, the size of those small birds (18 to 30 inches tall) makes the Emperor closer to child-size at his average height of three-feet, nine-inches.

Because penguins live in large groups in isolated areas where no other land animals dwell, they are not afraid of other animals and are thus easy to capture. Their friendly nature, as depicted in the play, is one quality which makes them enchanting.

Their friendly antics such as marching, sliding, and "fighting" have all been incorporated into the script.

Director B. J. Sowers has instructed the cast members to "think penguin." While they have little trouble learning to waddle with their arms stiffly extended at the sides as flippers, the most difficult task for the 16 children has been to remember that penguins don't talk.

The cast ranges in age from five-years-old to 11.

Agriculture Co-Ops Being Probed

FRESNO, Calif. (AP) — Fifty agricultural cooperatives are under investigation by the Federal Trade Commission to determine if they manipulate prices, say officials of three San Joaquin Valley co-ops.

The FTC refused comment on the reported investigation, but spokesmen for Sun-Maid Raisin Growers, Sunkist Growers Inc. and the Raisin Bargaining Association said Friday they are being required to submit detailed information about their operations.

"We have nothing to hide," said Kalem Barsarian, manager of the raisin group. "Their staff members are investigating co-ops all over the country. They want to know if we're manipulating prices."

the needed treatment just in time.

Having seen many cases similar to Tommy's, Dr. Frank R. Moore, Health Commissioner of Circleville, Pickaway County, stated that "95 per cent of all childhood poisonings could be prevented."

"In Tommy's case," Dr. Moore said, "the mother should never have stored poisonous products in an area so easily within a child's reach. Poisonous products should always be kept in their 'original' container, and never stored near food stuffs."

National Poison Prevention Week, March 16-22, is a week set aside to remind parents of cases like Tommy's, cases which could be prevented. During this week the Pickaway County Health Department will join state and national efforts in supporting poison prevention programs. Radio, television, and newspapers will carry reminders of these needless deaths and injuries.

Prevention is the only "sure" cure to childhood poisonings. Dr. Moore, in cooperation with the Accident Prevention and Product Safety Unit, Ohio Department of Health, urges parents to practice prevention by following these suggested guidelines:

1. Keep every potentially poisonous product out of your child's sight and reach.
2. Be sure all products are properly and clearly labeled.
3. Keep the poison in its original container. Do not store in food or beverage containers.
4. Do not store poisonous substances near food or beverage items.
5. Read the label and carefully follow "caution," "warning" or "danger" statements.
6. Destroy unused portions of medicine by flushing them down the drain.
7. Never take or give medication in the dark. Turn on the light and carefully read the label.
8. Call medicine by their name, they are not candy.
9. Take advantage of the new "child-proof" packaging. It is for your child's protection and it will work!
10. Have handy the phone number of your nearest doctor, poison control center, hospital and police.

Ninety-five per cent of all accidental poisonings are preventable. Poison Prevention Week is every week.

TV Wins Girls Cage Crown

Teays Valley claimed the Pickaway County Girls basketball title Saturday with a thrilling come-from-behind 39-32 over the scrappy Tigers of Circleville.

Over 2,000 fans attended Friday's semi-final games and the championship series Saturday at Westfall High School.

The Vikings gained their final berth by dumping Westfall 61-57 Friday, while Circleville disposed of Logan Elm 31-28.

Westfall won the consolation final with a hard-fought 46-41 decision over the Braves.

Teays Valley - Circleville

The Vikings, watching a six-point lead change to a five-point deficit, came on strong in the final period to out-score Circleville 8-2 for the win.

The actual margin of victory came at the foul line, where Teays Valley converted nine of 22 shots. Circleville failed to hit any of its nine foul attempts.

The Vikings were charged with 15 personal fouls, while Circleville was whistled 22 times, losing spark-plug Lisa Leahy and Anne Frericks in the final period to fouls.

While the championship clash was a battle of pressure defenses, there were some fine individual scoring efforts.

Cheri Stewart paced the Vikings with 16 points, six coming at the foul line. She scored 12 of her markers in the final half, eight coming in TV's third period catch-up.

Kim Martin fired in 11 points, eight in the second half, and Becky Foreman sparked the fast-break attack with 10 first half pointers. Deb Havens added two points to the Viking total.

Senior Becky Moorehead led a well-balanced Circleville offense, clicking for 12 points on her corner jumper. Ten of her points came in the first half.

Lisa Leahy, who sparked the Circleville defense with excellent ball-hawking, had six pointers, Anne Frericks, Darla Hughes, and Sue Crist had four each, and Julie Johnson hit for two markers.

The contest was, surprisingly, a match of 2-3 zone defenses.

Circleville's Sue Crist and Becky Moorehead both hit shots from the corner as the game began for a four-point Tiger lead. But the TV full-court pressure bothered the Tigers, and Cheri Stewart tipped in a missed shot, and Becky Foreman added two fast break baskets for a 6-4 TV lead.

Moorehead banged in two more corner shots to give the Tigers an 8-6 edge, but, after both teams traded baskets, the Vikings Kim Martin and Foreman whistled in fast-break scores for a 12-10 lead at the first period buzzer.

Deb Havens found the range with a jumper to open the second period, and Foreman cashed in on another fast break to give TV a 16-10 lead with 5:27 left in the half.

Moorehead and Sue Crist each scored to cut the lead to two, and after Martin hit a foul shot for the Vikings, Anne Frericks scored on a break, Moorehead hit on a rebound, and Darla Hughes scored two baskets from close range to give Circleville a 22-17 lead with 2:43 to play.

Stewart cashed in on two free throws for Teays Valley to cut the CHS lead to 22-19 at the half.

The Vikings outscored Circleville 12-8 in the third period, including a run of six straight points that gave them a 29-26 edge with 1:24 to play.

But Julie Johnson hit a jumper and Moorehead scored a shot at the buzzer to negate two Martin free throws and give Teays Valley a one-point 31-30 lead.

Stewart scored on a rebound and Martin added two shots in the first minute and a half of the final period to seal the win.

Circleville's only score came on a Crist jumper with 4:40 left in the game. The Vikes added two free throws to make the final score.

ESCAPE ATTEMPT—Circleville's Sue Crist attempts to escape from the pack during the championship game, but she is wrapped up by Teays Valley's Kim Martin. Others are Becky Moorehead (13), Sulayne Young (42), Cheri Stewart (30), and Darla Hughes (55).

FIGHT FOR REBOUND—Teays Valley's Lori Stewart and Cheri Stewart battle Circleville's Anne Frericks for a rebound in the championship game won by the Vikings. Others are Kim Martin (50) and Becky Moorehead (13).

FAST BREAK—Becky Foreman (10) was the sparkplug for Teays Valley during the tournament, scoring on numerous fast-break baskets. Here, she beats Circleville's Sue Crist during the championship game won by the Vikings.

OUTLET PASS—Westfall's Elaine Steinhauser (14) attempts to clear the ball to Cindy Schleich (32) or Karen Marshall, cutting from the pack, during the Mustangs win over Logan Elm in the consolation game. Others in the picture are Kim Finch (33), Rita Karshner (41), and Diane Martin (34).

All-Tourney Team Picked

Two Teays Valley seniors, the high-scorers in the tournament, paced the all-star team selections.

Cheri Stewart, a strong figure on the boards for the Vikings, scored 36 points in the two games to lead the all-tourney team.

Her running mate, Becky Foreman, tallied 35 points and was the main cog in the Viking fast break.

Placing on the team from Circleville were Lisa Leahy, who played determined ball at both ends of the floor and scored 14 points in the two games, and Becky Moorehead, the Tiger's fine outside shooting forward who netted 20 points.

Westfall's Karen Marshall and Cindy Schleich scored 33 and 32 points respectively to earn the all-tournament berths, and Logan Elm's Hope Justice with 14 points and Diane Martin with 19 rounded out the selected squad.

Good balance and heads up play led Westfall to its 46-41 win over Logan Elm in the consolation game.

Cindy Schleich scored 11 points for the Mustangs, Karen Marshall added 10, Michele Conley hit nine, Kim Finch and Nancy Schein had six each, and Elaine Steinhauser scored four.

The Mustangs converted 16 of 25 free throws as compared with nine of 19 for Logan Elm.

Hope Justice pounded in 12 points for the Braves, Rita Karshner struck for 11, Diane Martin had eight, Terri Ebert scored six, and Beth Bell hit for four.

Westfall struck fast, taking a 9-6 lead after the first period.

But the Braves came back and went ahead 12-11 on a fast break basket by Ebert with 5:58 remaining in the half.

That's when the Mustangs reeled off six straight pointers to up the lead to 17-12, and following a Diane Martin free throw, they added two more markers for a 19-13 edge.

But Logan Elm struck for four straight points to shave the lead to 19-17 with 2:13 left in the half, and following a Westfall score, hit for four more to tie the game at 21-21 with 58 seconds left in the half.

Both teams traded two pointers to retain the tie at the half.

Logan Elm blitzed to a 37-25 lead, badly outplaying Westfall in the third period. But Karen Marshall swiped the ball after a tip-off to score at the buzzer for the Mustangs and then added a free throw to cut the margin to 37-28.

Her score set the pace for the Mustangs, who ripped off 13 points and built a 42-37 lead before the Braves could counter.

That marker came at the foul line, where Karshner dropped in two free throws to shave the lead to 42-39.

But the Mustangs had the game won, finishing with two Michele Conley free throws for the victory.

Four Vikings Gain Places In State Mat Championship

Teays Valley's Bill Hurley and Mike Wilson were weight-class champions in the Central District High School wrestling competition and Bill Breon and Bill Toole placed second to lead the Vikings to a third place finish in the Saturday meet at Licking Heights High School.

The four, along with other first and second place winners in each of the 13 weight classes, all qualified for the 38th annual State meet Friday and Saturday at Ohio State University's St. John Arena.

They were the only four area wrestlers to qualify for the state championships.

DeSales, which lost its sectional title last weekend, came back to win the District with 70½ points and had four individual champions.

Other teams were Watterson, 58½; Teays Valley, 50½; Licking Heights, 49; Columbus Ready, 41½; Olentangy, 37½; Wehrle, 24½; Marysville, 24½; Jonathon Alder, 19; and Franklin Heights, 14.

Hurley won the 167-pound class by scoring a 5-4 decision over Keith Thomas of North Union in the championship round. Hurley pinned Gary Innes of Watterson in 3:10 of the quarter finals and decided Mike Martin of Buckeye Valley 15-0 in the semis.

Wilson decided Ready's Steve James 5-2 for the 175-pound championship. He pinned Ron Seifert of Watterson in 3:34 of the semi-final round and decided Circleville's John Payne 4-2 in the quarter-finals.

Lee Trevino Wins Citrus Tournament

ORLANDO, Fla. (AP) — There's a price to victory in pro golf.

Lee Trevino knows it. And he'll pay it. But he doesn't have to like it.

"I hate it," Trevino said.

"Starting back in November, I quit my jogging and exercising. And I played terrible. Last week I started up again. Exercising, sit-ups and such like, and jogging two miles every day."

And he won the Citrus Open Sunday with a front-running, one-under-par 71 that turned back the upset bids of Hale Irwin and Ben Crenshaw.

"That's terrible," Trevino said. "I don't jog and I play bad. I do my jogging and I win. That means I've got to keep on jogging and I hate it."

There's a reason for it.

"I'm a leg-hitter," Trevino said. "I use my body and my legs to hit the ball, not my hands and arms. So I'm gonna play better if my legs are in shape. And it looks like I'm gonna have to keep jogging."

In fact, immediately after holding off U.S. Open champion Hale Irwin and young Ben Crenshaw, Trevino said he planned a quick little sprint.

"Right to the nearest bar. That's all the running I'm gonna do today. You've got to give yourself one day off," he said.

The victory, Trevino's 18th official tour triumph in his storied career, came in highly undramatic fashion. He started the final round in front. He stayed in front. He finished in front, with a 277 total, 121-under-par on the 6,929-yard Rio Pinar Country Club course.

Irwin, the U.S. Open champion who now has finished sixth or better in four consecutive starts, was one stroke back at 276 after a closing 68. Trevino led by at least two until Irwin cut the gap with a birdie on the 17th hole.

Crenshaw was another shot back at 71-278.

"If you give a player of Trevino's caliber the amount of room we did, he can dance with it," Irwin said.

Trevino started the final round with a two-shot advantage, birdied the first hole from five feet, bogeyed the third from a bunker, scrambled for a couple of holes—then hit the last 12 greens in regulation in a winning display of consistency. He birdied the 10th from 35 feet and parred the rest—just as he needed to do.

No one got closer than two shots until Irwin's magnificent wedge shot stopped only six inches from the cup for a birdie on the 17th.

Former Masters champion Charles Coody claimed fourth with a 71-279. The group at 281 included Australian Bruce Devlin, Forrest Fezler and Rik Massengale. Fezler had a closing 67, Massengale 70 and Devlin matched par 72.

Jack Nicklaus and Johnny Miller did not compete.

"They should have," Trevino said. "Maybe I'd have played better."

Buffalo, Boston Post NHL Wins

Buffalo's Don Luce and Boston's Gregg Sheppard were at their best with their teams short-handed Sunday night. The only difference was that Sheppard didn't have to worry about a goalie.

While Sheppard scored two short-handed goals into an empty Atlanta net in the final minute to seal the Bruins' 5-2 victory over the Flames Sunday night, Luce tied a National Hockey League record with his eighth short-handed goal of the season as the Sabres trimmed the Pittsburgh Penguins 8-4.

Elsewhere, the Montreal Canadiens downed the New York Rangers 5-3, the California Seals topped the New York Islanders 4-2, the Philadelphia Flyers outlasted the Detroit Red Wings 8-5, the St. Louis Blues edged the Minnesota North Stars 5-4 and the Toronto Maple Leafs turned back the Washington Capitals 4-2.

Bobby Orr broke his own record for goals by a defenseman with his 38th of the season in the Bruins' triumph over Atlanta, their sixth straight victory. Orr also assisted on three other goals and took a threepoint lead over teammate Phil Esposito in the NHL scoring race.

TV Wins Girls Cage Crown

Teays Valley claimed the Pickaway County Girls basketball title Saturday with a thrilling come-from-behind 39-32 over the scrappy Tigers of Circleville.

Over 2,000 fans attended Friday's semi-final games and the championship series Saturday at Westfall High School.

The Vikings gained their final berth by dumping Westfall 61-57 Friday, while Circleville disposed of Logan Elm 31-28.

Westfall won the consolation final with a hard-fought 46-41 decision over the Braves.

Teays Valley - Circleville

The Vikings, watching a six-point lead change to a five-point deficit, came on strong in the final period to out-score Circleville 8-2 for the win.

The actual margin of victory came at the foul line, where Teays Valley converted nine of 22 shots. Circleville failed to hit any of its nine foul attempts.

The Vikings were charged with 15 personal fouls, while Circleville was whistled 22 times, losing spark-plug Lisa Leahy and Anne Frericks in the final period to fouls.

While the championship clash was a battle of pressure defenses, there were some fine individual scoring efforts. Cheri Stewart paced the Vikings with 16 points, six coming at the foul line. She scored 12 of her markers in the final half, eight coming in TV's third period catch-up.

Kim Martin fired in 11 points, eight in the second half, and Becky Foreman sparked the fast-break attack with 10 first half pointers. Deb Havens added two points to the Viking total.

Senior Becky Moorehead led a well-balanced Circleville offense, clicking for 12 points on her corner jumper. Ten of her points came in the first half. Lisa Leahy, who sparked the Circleville defense with excellent ball-hawking, had six pointers, Anne Frericks, Darla Hughes, and Sue Crist had four each, and Julie Johnson hit two markers.

The contest was, surprisingly, a match of 2-3 zone defenses.

Circleville's Sue Crist and Becky Moorehead both hit shots from the corner as the game began for a four-point Tiger lead. But the TV full-court pressure bothered the Tigers, and Cheri Stewart tipped in a missed shot, and Becky Foreman added two fast break baskets for a 6-4 TV lead.

Moorehead banged in two more corner shots to give the Tigers an 8-6 edge, but, after both teams traded baskets, the Vikings Kim Martin and Foreman whistled in fast-break scores for a 12-10 lead at the first period buzzer.

Deb Havens found the range with a jumper to open the second period, and Foreman cashed in on another fast break to give TV a 16-10 lead with 5:27 left in the half.

Moorehead and Sue Crist each scored to cut the lead to two, and after Martin hit a foul shot for the Vikings, Anne Frericks scored on a break, Moorehead hit on a rebound, and Darla Hughes scored two baskets from close range to give Circleville a 22-17 lead with 2:43 to play.

Stewart cashed in on two free throws for Teays Valley to cut the CHS lead to 22-19 at the half.

The Vikings outscored Circleville 12-8 in the third period, including a run of six straight points that gave them a 29-26 edge with 1:24 to play.

But Julie Johnson hit a jumper and Moorehead scored a shot at the buzzer to negate two Martin free throws and give Teays Valley a one-point 31-30 lead.

Stewart scored on a rebound and Martin added two shots in the first minute and a half of the final period to seal the win.

Circleville's only score came on a Crist jumper with 4:40 left in the game. The Vikes added two free throws to make the final score.

Westfall - Logan Elm

Good balance and heads up play led Westfall to its 46-41 win over Logan Elm in the consolation game.

Cindy Schleich scored 11 points for the Mustangs. Karen Marshall added 10, Michele Conley hit nine, Kim Finch and Nancy Schein had six each, and Elaine Steinhauer scored four.

The Mustangs converted 16 of 25 free throws as compared with nine of 19 for Logan Elm.

Hope Justice pounded in 12 points for the Braves, Rita Karshner struck for 11, Diane Martin had eight, Terri Ebert scored six, and Beth Bell hit for four.

Westfall struck fast, taking a 9-6 lead after the first period.

But the Braves came back and went ahead 12-11 on a fast break basket by Ebert with 5:58 remaining in the half.

That's when the Mustangs reeled off six straight pointers to up the lead to 17-12, and following a Diane Martin free throw, they added two more markers for a 19-13 edge.

But Logan Elm struck for four straight points to shave the lead to 19-17 with 2:13 left in the half, and following a Westfall score, hit for four more to tie the game at 21-21 with 58 seconds left in the half.

Both teams traded two pointers to retain the tie at the half.

Logan Elm blitzed to a 37-25 lead, badly outplaying Westfall in the third period. But Karen Marshall swiped the ball after a tip-off to score at the buzzer for the Mustangs and then added a free throw to cut the margin to 37-28.

Her score set the pace for the Mustangs, who ripped off 13 points and built a 42-37 lead before the Braves could counter.

That marker came at the foul line, where Karshner dropped in two free throws to shave the lead to 42-39.

But the Mustangs had the game won, finishing with two Michele Conley free throws for the victory.

Lee Trevino Wins Citrus Tournament

ORLANDO, Fla. (AP) — There's a price to victory in pro golf.

Lee Trevino knows it. And he'll pay it. But he doesn't have to like it.

"I hate it," Trevino said.

"Starting back in November, I quit my jogging and exercising. And I played terrible. Last week I started up again. Exercising, sit-ups and such like, and jogging two miles every day."

And he won the Citrus Open Sunday with a front-running, one-under-par 71 that turned back the upset bids of Hale Irwin and Ben Crenshaw.

Buffalo's Don Luce and Boston's Gregg Sheppard were at their best with their teams shorthanded Sunday night. The only difference was that Sheppard didn't have to worry about a goalie.

While Sheppard scored two short-handed goals into an empty Atlanta net in the final minute to seal the Bruins' 5-2 victory over the Flames Sunday night, Luce tied a National Hockey League record with his eighth shorthanded goal of the season as the Sabres trimmed the Pittsburgh Penguins 8-4.

Tigers Win District

WILLIE SCORES AGAIN—Circleville's Harold Reed jumps between St. Charles' Marquis Miller (45) and Eric Stinson (35) for two of his game-high 29 points in leading the Tigers to the District win Saturday. George Moore and Mike Hausfeld are doing a little pushing to position themselves for a rebound.

BASKET ACTION—With Harold Reed and Mike McCoy watching, Circleville's George Moore gets off a shot against Eric Stinson of St. Charles in the Tiger's district final win Saturday.

BATTLE FOR BALL—Four players battle for the ball during Circleville's victory over St. Charles. Eric Stinson (35) appears to have the best shot over Harold Reed and Biff Bumgarner of Circleville and an unidentified Cardinal.

Tigers again closed out the period in high gear, getting two scores from Reed and a Hoskins basket for a commanding 34-18 lead.

The big lead and foul trouble prompted Circleville to go into a stall-type offense that saw the Tigers convert three of six shots from the floor in the period and four of eight free throws. St. Charles managed only five of eight hoops and two free throws.

Reed, who had five points in the period, again started it off with his inside move. And after St. Charles rallied for four points, the Tigers burst out to a 19 point 41-23 lead on the strength of five straight points.

George Moore exited with 5:27 remaining in the period with his fourth foul, but that didn't bother the Tigers who coasted to a 44-30 lead at the third period buzzer.

St. Charles tried a come-back bid in the final period, hitting 11 of 22 shots and two free throws. But Circleville mustered five of 10 baskets from its slow-down offense and eight of 11 free throws to retain the lead and the win.

St. Charles pulled with six points, 58-52, with 19 seconds left on a Hausfeld jumper from the key. But Moore scored two free throws and a layup to shut the door for good.

It was the 22nd straight win this year for Circleville, who will receive the State Class AA championship trophy from the Associated Press after being voted the best team in the state. Other honors include a special award from the South Central Ohio League for winning the league crown with an unbeaten mark, the Grove City sectional trophy, and the district trophy.

Tickets for the regional contest between Circleville and Springfield Shawnee will go on sale Tuesday at 8 a.m. at Circleville High School.

Both student and adult seats are reserved so fans who want to sit together are advised to purchase tickets together. School officials, attending a pre-tournament session Sunday, received 1,200 more tickets than they were originally allocated.

They will have 1,000 student tickets for sale at $1.50 each and 1,500 adult tickets at $2.50 each. Tickets will also be sold at the door but will not be available there for the Tiger fans' section.

If Circleville wins Friday and advances to Saturday's final round, tickets will be sold at the pre-sale price immediately following the game at the Dayton arena.

Complete instructions on directions to the Dayton Arena will be published in Wednesday's issue of The Herald.

In the first game of the regional, Cincinnati Reading will play Dayton Stivers at 7:30 p.m. Friday preceding the Circleville-Shawnee clash at 9:30 p.m. The two winners will battle Saturday at 9:30 p.m. for the right to square off against Ohio's three other regional winners in the State Class AA championship March 21 and 22 at Ohio State University's St. John Arena.

Shawnee gained the regional berth by nipping Bellfontaine 47-46 Saturday afternoon.

In the other Central District game Saturday, River Valley topped Marion Elgin 73-68. Valley will play Greenfield McClain, 63-62 winner of Wheelersburg, in the first round of the Ohio University regional tournament.

Tigers Win District

WILLIE SCORES AGAIN—Circleville's Harold Reed jumps between St. Charles' Marquis Miller (45) and Eric Stinson (35) for two of his game-high 29 points in leading the Tigers to the District win Saturday. George Moore and Mike Hausfeld are doing a little pushing to position themselves for a rebound.

BASKET ACTION—With Harold Reed and Mike McCoy watching, Circleville's George Moore gets off a shot against Eric Stinson of St. Charles in the Tiger's district final win Saturday.

BATTLE FOR BALL—Four players battle for the ball during Circleville's victory over St. Charles. Eric Stinson (35) appears to have the best shot over Harold Reed and Biff Bumgarner of Circleville and an unidentified Cardinal.

Tigers again closed out the period in high gear, getting two scores from Reed and a Hoskins basket for a commanding 34-18 lead.

The big lead and foul trouble prompted Circleville to go into a stall-type offense that saw the Tigers convert three of six shots from the floor in the period and four of eight free throws. St. Charles managed only five of eight hoops and two free throws.

Reed, who had five points in the period, again started it off with his inside move. And after St. Charles rallied for four points, the Tigers burst out to a 19 point 41-23 lead on the strength of five straight points.

George Moore exited with 5:27 remaining in the period with his fourth foul, but that didn't bother the Tigers who coasted to a 44-30 lead at the third period buzzer.

St. Charles tried a come-back bid in the final period, hitting 11 of 22 shots and two free throws. But Circleville mustered five of 10 baskets from its slow-down offense and eight of 11 free throws to retain the lead and the win.

St. Charles pulled with six points, 58-52, with 19 seconds left on a Hausfeld jumper from the key. But Moore scored two free throws and a layup to shut the door for good.

It was the 22nd straight win this year for Circleville, who will receive the State Class AA championship trophy from the Associated Press after being voted the best team in the state. Other honors include a special award from the South Central Ohio League for winning the league crown with an unbeaten mark, the Grove City sectional trophy, and the district trophy.

Tickets for the regional contest between Circleville and Springfield Shawnee will go on sale Tuesday at 8 a.m. at Circleville High School.

Both student and adult seats are reserved so fans who want to sit together are advised to purchase tickets together. School officials, attending a pre-tournament session Sunday, received 1,200 more tickets than they were originally allocated.

They will have 1,000 student tickets for sale at $1.50 each and 1,500 adult tickets at $2.50 each. Tickets will also be sold at the door but will not be available there for the Tiger fans' section.

If Circleville wins Friday and advances to Saturday's final round, tickets will be sold at the pre-sale price immediately following the game at the Dayton arena.

Complete instructions on directions to the Dayton Arena will be published in Wednesday's issue of The Herald.

In the first game of the regional, Cincinnati Reading will play Dayton Stivers at 7:30 p.m. Friday preceding the Circleville-Shawnee clash at 9:30 p.m. The two winners will battle Saturday at 9:30 p.m. for the right to square off against Ohio's three other regional winners in the State Class AA championship March 21 and 22 at Ohio State University's St. John Arena.

Shawnee gained the regional berth by nipping Bellfontaine 47-46 Saturday afternoon.

In the other Central District game Saturday, River Valley topped Marion Elgin 73-68. Valley will play Greenfield McClain, 63-62 winner of Wheelersburg, in the first round of the Ohio University regional tournament.

Akron Team Leader In Bowling Tourney

CANTON, Ohio (AP) — An Akron team took over first place in both the team actual and team handicap divisions of the Ohio State Bowling Association tournament Sunday with a scratch score of 3,294.

Leading Kent Lincoln-Mercury into the top spot was Sam Baca with a 726. Other individual scores were Bill Gaume 686, Fred Borden 646, John Keith 629 and Tom Fuchan 607.

The previous leader, the Stud Club of Wapakoneta, slipped to second place after tournament officials revised its score down from 3,301 to 3,286 because of an error in figuring the team's handicap.

LE Independent Cage Tourney Opens

Ginny's Beauty Salon and Logan Elm Coaches meet at 6:30 p.m. tonight in the open game of the Logan Elm Boosters independent basketball tournament.

The second game scheduled to start at 8 p.m. pits Laurelville against Giovanni's Pizza. The 16-team tournament is scheduled to run through March 21.

St. Xavier Winner Of Swimming Tourney

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Coach Mike Arata says it's just good, old-fashioned, hard work that makes Cincinnati St. Xavier the perennial Ohio high school swimming champion. "We ask a huge amount from our kids," said Arata Saturday, moments after St. Xavier had posted its sixth straight state title in the Ohio State Natatorium.

Look in the section in which your birthday comes and find what your outlook is, according to the stars.

FOR TUESDAY

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 20): Favorable Mars influences stimulate your ingenuity. Managing present situations cleverly will be wiser than reaching for "better prospects," however.

TAURUS (Apr. 21 to May 21): Hold off expansion of activities until you make sure that you are within safe limits and can handle the "extras" without deserting primary interests.

GEMINI (May 22 to June 21): Beneficent Mercury influences now heighten imagination and encourage your ingenious methods. Capitalize on ALL of your talents and you should do extremely well.

CANCER (June 22 to July 23): Whatever your plans, take into account new trends and ideas, changing maneuvers to fit situations.

LEO (July 24 to Aug. 23): Especially favored now: conferences, making plans for the future, pursuits which stimulate the intellect.

VIRGO (Aug. 24 to Sept. 23): Do not answer questions or make commitments if you are unsure of your own stand or abilities. There's a tendency to be overconfident now.

LIBRA (Sept. 24 to Oct. 23): Pay no heed to glowing reports or sensational rumors — especially if finances are involved. Keep on an even keel and you should do well.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24 to Nov. 22): Be ready to face competition. You usually enjoy the stimulation of this, but don't burn the candle at both ends in your desire to get ahead. Easy does it!

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23 to Dec. 21): An associate will offer some unexpected assistance. Be receptive. The proffered help will be genuine, the motive sincere.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20): Routine will probably bore you now, but don't idle time away. Get busy on one of your pet creative projects. Influences stimulate original ideas.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19): If you've been interested in a new project but have postponed taking action, NOW is the time! But be sure you have the know-how and enough data to go on.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20): There are tendencies now to take off on tangents and to ease up in effort just when more persistence is needed. Don't fail yourself by yielding to such inclinations.

YOU BORN TODAY are endowed with a high order of intellect which, coupled with a strong intensity of emotion, fits you for a life of creativity.

You express yourself best in music and literature, but you could also excel in the ministry, as a teacher of metaphysics, in the entertainment field, or as an actor or painter. You intuition is outstanding, but you do not always make the most of these intuitive powers — sometimes to ill effect.

Governed by Neptune, you are strongly attracted to professions or activities dealing with the sea; could also make a success of physics and chemistry — especially in the mixing and blending of liquids. You are not a good businessman, so don't look to success along those lines. Birthdate of: Lawrence Welk, musical conductor and TV personality.

NEW YORK (AP) — Veteran actor Chauncey Gramace just signed to star in "Kharcher." It's a new series of unadorned chase scenes and dialogue from the "Khan" and "Archer" series, axed after brief runs this winter. Gramace, a specialist in tough-guy roles, isn't worried that "Kharcher" will disappear as quickly as the two series it draws from.

"The network thinks we have a winner," Gramace said during a luncheon interview. "I agree. Otherwise, I wouldn't do the series. It has everything — action, romance, suspense and a cash rebate."

"I play a private detective, Sam Kharcher. But he's not like Khan or Lew Archer. For one thing, he wears tights. For another, he..."

Chauncey paused as a messenger gave him a script. The 58-year-old actor leafed through the pages and grunted.

"They've canceled the tights," he said. "Just as well. I know Sam Kharcher likes ballet, but that was stretching it. About the show, now. Kharcher is a detective who's been around."

"He's a former New York cop fighting his own war on crime. He..."

Another script arrived. Gramace thumbed through the pages again.

"Hmm, they've changed that," he said. "Kharcher isn't a former cop anymore. He's a former TV anchorman in Los Angeles who quit because the station wouldn't let him do investigative reporting."

"All-righty," he added with the patented sneer that earned him an Oscar in 1960 as the rackets boss in "Cry Ouch!," a classic mob film. "So Sam Kharcher is a former TV anchorman in Los Angeles who..."

Another script arrived. More page-thumbing. "... Make that former Chicago newspaperman whose investigative reporting made the mob so mad it killed his Hudson Hornet," Gramace continued. "So he's trying to get even, in a sense."

"He's set up his own detective agency to investigate unsolved mob murders. He occasionally takes a well-paying case, but only to make ends meet and pay the back alimony he owes his ex-wife."

Yet another script arrived. Gramace lost his patented cool.

"Drat, what now?" he growled, perusing the papyrus. "It says the ex-wife is out. He now has a wife, three kids and a dog named Boo. And Sam Kharcher isn't a private detective anymore."

"He's a former private eye who became a plainclothes cop as a more effective way of fighting his own war on crime."

Views On Television

NEW YORK (AP) — Veteran actor Chauncey Gramace just signed to star in "Kharcher." It's a new series of unused chase scenes and dialogue from the "Khan" and "Archer" series, axed after brief runs this winter. Gramace, a specialist in tough-guy roles, isn't worried that "Kharcher" will disappear as quickly as the two series it draws from. "The network thinks we have a winner," Gramace said during a luncheon interview. "I agree. Otherwise, I wouldn't do the series. It has everything — action, romance, suspense and a cash rebate."

"I play a private detective, Sam Kharcher. But he's not like Khan or Lew Archer. For one thing, he wears tights. For another, he..."

Chauncey paused as a messenger gave him a script. The 58-year-old actor leafed through the pages and grunted.

"They've canceled the tights," he said. "Just as well. I know Sam Kharcher likes ballet, but that was stretching it. About the show, now. Kharcher is a detective who's been around."

"He's a former New York cop fighting his own war on crime. He..."

Another script arrived. Gramace thumbed through the pages again.

"Hmm, they've changed that," he said. "Kharcher isn't a former cop anymore. He's a former TV anchorman in Los Angeles who quit because the station wouldn't let him do investigative reporting."

"All-righty," he added with the patented sneer that earned him an Oscar in 1960 as the rackets boss in "Cry Ouch!," a classic mob film. "So Sam Kharcher is a former TV anchorman in Los Angeles who..."

Another script arrived. More page-thumbing. "... Make that former Chicago newspaperman whose investigative reporting made the mob so mad it killed his Hudson Hornet," Gramace continued. "So he's trying to get even, in a sense."

"He's set up his own detective agency to investigate unsolved mob murders. He occasionally takes a well-paying case, but only to make ends meet and pay the back alimony he owes his ex-wife."

Yet another script arrived. Gramace lost his patented cool.

"Drat, what now?" he growled, perusing the papyrus. "It says the ex-wife is out. He now has a wife, three kids and a dog named Boo. And Sam Kharcher isn't a private detective anymore."

"He's a former private eye who became a plainclothes cop as a more effective way of fighting his own war on crime."

Nebraska, New Jersey, New York, North Carolina, Ohio, Oregon, Tennessee, Utah, Washington and West Virginia.

Officials in Colorado and Iowa have proposed what they call tax adjustments.

Tax decreases have been proposed or are being talked about in Arkansas, Idaho, Indiana, Kansas, Minnesota, Missouri, Montana, New Mexico, North Carolina, North Dakota and Texas.

The 28 states expected to end the current year with a surplus are: Alabama, Arkansas, California, Colorado, Georgia, Hawaii, Idaho, Indiana, Iowa, Kansas, Kentucky, Louisiana, Maryland, Minnesota, Missouri, Montana, North Carolina, New Mexico, North Dakota, Ohio, Oklahoma, Oregon, South Carolina, South Dakota, Texas, Washington, West Virginia and Wisconsin. Politicians in Delaware and New York are arguing over whether there is a surplus.

Most states are not allowed to operate with deficit financing. Any deficit accumulated at the end of one fiscal year must be paid off in the next budget.

A study by the U.S. Conference of Mayors and the National League of Cities, in connection with the federal budget, reported that state and local governments registered a $7.5 billion deficit in 1974. The survey also said that as of 1972, 47.5 per cent of all government spending took place at the state and local levels.

TOP SALESMEN—"Tonnage Drive '75" was the theme of the recently completed training course for salesmen of John W. Eshelman and Sons, Circleville. The two day meeting was highlighted by the presentation of awards for the recently completed TAP-74 Program. Roy Villnave (left) of New York State was top salesman showing an increase of 1,925 tons over last year. Others receiving awards were Cal Clingan, Findlay; David Miller, Clarksburg; Kenneth Hill, Kettering; Raymond Stone, Circleville; Richard Weidlich, Cambridge.

Ohio Farmers Union Launches Drive To Cut Production

A 105-member task force of the Ohio Farmers Union launched a drive today for a 10 per cent cutback in grains production this year unless the government provides price floors of at least 90 per cent of parity.

The Farmers Union leaders, representing 30 Ohio counties including Pickaway, signed petitions assuring such a cutback for themselves, and took petitions home to begin a campaign to sign up other farmers.

Jack Rose of Harrod, the president of the Ohio Farmers Union, who headed a 25-member delegation in Washington, D. C. earlier in the week, reported to the group on failure of the House Agriculture Committee to approve such legislation. A dozen or so members of the group that went to Washington expressed disappointment over the failure of Congress to face up to the present state of uncertainty in agriculture. They also expressed disapproval of the U.S. Department of Agriculture which opposes any improvement in current farm legislation.

The Farmers Union petition said, "Farmers are anxious to produce at maximum levels, but they are concerned that the disaster which has been allowed to persist for dairy and livestock producers is now spreading to the cash grain and feed grains sectors. With high interest rates and persistent inflation, the high cost of many farm inputs and the scarcity and high price of fertilizer, the risks are greater than we the undersigned feel we can reasonably assume under present conditions."

"There is still time to cut back on planting intentions for 1975 and we will have no recourse than to do so unless some definite assurances are forthcoming very shortly. If we have no other choice, we expect to reduce crop plantings by 10 per cent — a very regrettable but necessary decision."

"The failure of the Congress and the President to act to provide price floors or other assurances at least at 90 per cent of parity is an invitation to disaster both for farmers and consumers. We believe consumers recognize that farmers must be able to survive and continue to produce if there is to be ample production. Thus, the responsibility for shortages and disaster clearly lies with the White House and the Congress if no meaningful action is taken."

The Farmers Union task force members heard reports that the move to cut production is already afoot in other states, including Illinois, Indiana, Nebraska, and Minnesota. The Ohio Farmers Union had first called for such a cutback program in December last year. The national board of directors of the Farmers Union has also taken such action.

Rose said, "We are asking our leadership to take this program to the country. We expect that county meetings will be held. Then we are going to take the message to the Congress and the President. We don't believe they realize the mood of farmers in the face of rising costs and the lack of any meaningful guarantees on the prices we might receive at harvest time."

Conservation Clubs Learn About Ecology

Amy, Stephanie and Steven Frain, children of Mr. and Mrs. John Frain, Route 1, Orient, are shown taking a water sample as part of a streams conservation project.

The environment, ecology, conservation — these are words we hear every day on the television, radio, and in the newspaper. Words, that's all they are until we decide we want to learn more about what is going on in the world around us. What do you know about our forest, birds, and wildlife? What about our soil, water and air? As you know many of our national resources are dwindling. Do you really care? What does it mean to your life?

The more you know about a subject, the more information you can gather, the better you will be able to speak intelligently about these areas. The 4-H program offers projects in streams, birds, forest, wildlife and soil. These are only a few of the major categories under the conservation area. Are you interested in bees and insects? Find out more about the work they do together and how it fits into the balance of nature.

The field of conservation is also a very fruitful area as you think about job opportunities. More and more people are going to be needed to solve the problems of our resources. Join a 4-H conservation club and find out if you might be interested.

Join a conservation club and do water sampling, study stream flows, soil formation and utilization. Study birds in their native habitat. Find out why certain trees are able to survive in a given place and others can not.

Get involved, learn, meet new friends and have fun — all at the same time.

State Board Approves County Office Budgets

In a resolution before the State Board of Education today, the resources for the county office budgets for the fiscal year 1974-75 were approved.

The financial resources approved for the Pickaway County Board of Education office on Franklin Street totaled $170,664. This figure includes $85,819 in the state's share and $84,845 of the county's share and provides for $39,687 for supervisory allowance.

There were 44 counties with office budgets more than the one submitted by Pickaway County and 42 with budgets less than the local figure. Hocking County was not listed on the budget sheet.

The total budget for the 87 county offices in the state is $20,924,686.

Counties in the area surrounding Pickaway County included total budgets ranging from $87,941 for Fayette County to $468,986 for Franklin County. Fairfield County's office will cost $179,475, only $9,000 more than Pickaway, but Fairfield County has seven local districts as compared to three local districts in Pickaway.

The budget submitted to operate the Madison County office is $383,214, while Ross County's budget is $228,782.

Other items before the State Board of Education include the revoking of three teaching certificates for convictions of felonies. A teacher on this list was convicted in Clermont County for assault with a deadly weapon; one from Franklin County was charged with aggravated robbery; and a third from Geauga County was sentenced on one count of abetting delinquency in a minor and one count of sexual imposition of a child under the age of 15.

These teachers were notified that they are entitled to a hearing before final action is made on the revocation.

Conservation Camp Enjoyable Experience

By DONNA MILBURN

Ecology, pollution, and our environment are topics that have been on the minds of many this past year. I learned a great deal about these things and had a terrific time doing it when I attended the Ohio 4-H Conservation Camp the past summer. I was able to enjoy this experience because of support from local and state groups and companies.

About 160 kids in 4-H from all over the state attended this camp. Camp Ohio is a beautiful, woody, spacious place. During the week-long stay we hiked through much of the area and listened to several specialists who talked to us about their fields, such as wild life, water, forestry, and soil. We were divided up into small groups, each of which were given a map of a certain area of land, and we were to decide how to put it to use, remembering what the specialist had said. My group decided to farm most of the imaginary land and to grow Christmas trees on the rest.

Besides learning a lot, I also had a lot of fun at Camp Ohio. Everyday we could go swimming, and at night we had recreation and vespers. One evening we had a barbecue, and on the last night we had a candlelight ceremony. We spent one day away from camp and toured a sawmill, a paper mill, a water treatment plant, and Schoenbrunn Village. That evening we saw a fantastic outdoor drama, "Trumpet in the Land."

I went to this camp not knowing a soul but made many exciting friends there that I still occasionally see. I learned a lot of new ideas and met many fascinating people at Conservation Camp. I would like to thank the community for supporting 4-H trips like this and the 4-H program.

Auto Crashes Fatal To 3

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Ohio has recorded its lowest weekend traffic death toll in several years, with only three fatalities counted in the 54-hour period between 6 p.m. Friday and midnight Sunday.

The Ohio Highway Patrol headquarters in Columbus said records were not available Sunday night, but the fatality figure certainly was the state's lowest in a number of years.

No fatal accidents were reported in the state Sunday.

Ford, Rocky Bolster Party

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Ford and Vice President Nelson A. Rockefeller are stressing the virtues of the two-party system in the face of conservative talk of a third party in 1976.

Ford and Rockefeller sounded similar themes Friday to a Republican party conference considering how the GOP can recover from its current minority status. National Chairman Mary Louise Smith and Sen. Robert Dole warned that the party is in deep trouble and that things could get worse.

Leading spokesmen for GOP conservatives and moderates, Mississippi Chairman Clarke Reed and Sen. Charles H. Percy of Illinois, also decried third-party talk.

Former California Gov. Ronald Reagan, who has maintained a non-committal attitude to those urging him to head a third party or mount a conservative challenge to Ford, speaks to today's closing session of the conference.

Ford was given a rousing reception at a banquet Friday night as he reaffirmed "without equivocation" that he plans to seek a full presidential term next year. He added, "I intend to win."

The President was given a three-minute standing ovation when he entered the ballroom and again when he was introduced. His half-hour speech was interrupted 25 times with applause.

He warned that the death of the GOP would kill a two-party system that provides choice, encourages accommodation and compromise and "excludes the fanatic factions" while leaving room for reasonable differences.

Ford said the GOP "must erect a tent that is big enough for all who care about this great country and believe in the Republican party" as well as for independents backing its candidates and programs.

In a similar vein, Rockefeller appealed to a luncheon gathering to maintain two parties "with broad spectrums in both parties," calling for a GOP "that represents all the people, all points of view" but goes united to the country after settling its internal battles.

Percy and Reed made their comments questioning the value of a third party during an afternoon panel discussion on how Republicans can broaden their ranks.

"How can we be effective if we are even a smaller party than we are now?" the Illinois Republican asked. Reed agreed with Percy about what he termed "ridiculous third party stuff."

Meanwhile, Sen. Jesse Helms, R-N.C., appointed a subcommittee to study the election laws of all 50 states with a view toward putting a conservative third party on the ballot next year.

Helms, who was named to head a Committee on Conservative Alternatives at a recent conservative conference, named publisher William Rusher of National Review Magazine to head the subcommittee.

"We do not rule out the possibility of a coalition of disenchanted Americans organizing themselves within the party system as a major new party if the present political system fails to respond to the need for a philosophical realignment," Helms said.

Conservation Clubs Learn About Ecology

Amy, Stephanie and Steven Frait, children of Mr. and Mrs. John Frait, Route 1, Orient, are shown taking a water sample as part of a streams conservation project.

The environment, ecology, conservation — these are words we hear every day on the television, radio, and in the newspaper. Words, that's all they are until we decide we want to learn more about what is going on in the world around us. What do you know about our forest, birds, and wildlife? What about our soil, water and air? As you know many of our national resources are dwindling. Do you really care? What does it mean to your life?

The more you know about a subject, the more information you can gather, the better you will be able to speak intelligently about these areas. The 4-H program offers projects in streams, birds, forest, wildlife and soil. These are only a few of the major categories under the conservation area. Are you interested in bees and insects? Find out more about the work they do together and how it fits into the balance of nature.

The field of conservation is also a very fruitful area as you think about job opportunities. More and more people are going to be needed to solve the problems of our resources. Join a 4-H conservation club and find out if you might be interested.

Join a conservation club and do water sampling, study stream flows, soil formation and utilization. Study birds in their native habitat. Find out why certain trees are able to survive in a given place and others can not.

Get involved, learn, meet new friends and have fun — all at the same time.

Conservation Camp Enjoyable Experience

By DONNA MILBURN

Ecology, pollution, and our environment are topics that have been on the minds of many this past year. I learned a great deal about these things and had a terrific time doing it when I attended the Ohio 4-H Conservation Camp the past summer. I was able to enjoy this experience because of support from local and state groups and companies.

About 160 kids in 4-H from all over the state attended this camp. Camp Ohio is a beautiful, woody, spacious place. During the week-long stay we hiked through much of the area and listened to several specialists who talked to us about their fields, such as wild life, water, forestry, and soil. We were divided up into small groups, each of which were given a map of a certain area of land, and we were to decide how to put it to use, remembering what the specialist had said. My group decided to farm most of the imaginary land and to grow Christmas trees on the rest.

Besides learning a lot, I also had a lot of fun at Camp Ohio. Everyday we could go swimming, and at night we had recreation and vespers. One evening we had a barbecue, and on the last night we had a candlelight ceremony. We spent one day away from camp and toured a sawmill, a paper mill, a water treatment plant, and Schoenbrunn Village. That evening we saw a fantastic outdoor drama, "Trumpet in the Land."

I went to this camp not knowing a soul but made many exciting friends there that I still occasionally see. I learned a lot of new ideas and met many fascinating people at Conservation Camp. I would like to thank the community for supporting 4-H trips like this and the 4-H program.

AMY AND BARBARA SCHNEIDER

Dog Project Ideal For 4-H Members

Amy and Barbara Schneider, daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Schneider, 319 Meadow Lane, Circleville, are shown with Amy's 4-H dog project. Barbara is involved in the 4-H horse project.

The dog project in the 4-H program is another area where members can care for an animal and not live in the country.

Members are taught how to care for and groom their animals. The dogs are also put through a very intensive dog obedience training program. The 4-H advisors in the county are thoroughly trained in teaching dog obedience.

There are several classes through which the dog and member advances. The first year member just starting with a new dog goes into the sub-novice class. They advance together through sub-novice B, novice B, novice, and finally graduate-novice. It is truly amazing what the member and dog have learned by the time they get through the graduate-novice class.

Each year at the fair on Sunday afternoon, in the 4-H and Grange Building, the dogs and their masters can be seen going through their paces.

The only requirements for the dogs are that they are at least six months old and have received all their required shots. The member must have a leather strap leash and a choke chain.

This is an ideal project for the 4-H member. What young person doesn't think he has the best dog in the world, and what dog could not use some more training in obedience? You can "kill two birds with one stone" — show off your dog and get him to be better behaved at the same time. Join the 4-H dog program!

Small Animals Make Excellent Projects

Debbie Eads, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Eads, Route 1, is shown with her rabbit 4-H project.

DEBBIE EADS

Rabbits, hamsters, gerbils, mice, cats, and any other small animal makes excellent 4-H project. Many times people think of 4-H as a program for people who live out in the country and have room for large animals. This is an important part of the program, but what about the person 9-19 who does not have room to keep a large animal at his home but is still interested in animals? The answer lies in some of the above named projects.

The same lessons can be learned with these animals. The foods they should eat. What will make their coats shiny and bright? What diseases must the member be on the lookout against? Is there a market for the young of this animal and if so, what are the products used for? What are the career opportunities such as becoming a rabbit breeder, pelt processor, pet store operator?

Also, the projects lead themselves well to family involvement. The parents of the member can help them find solutions. The parent who is available to members particularly when they are young is the parent who sees his teenage daughter or son come to him with problems during this period in life. 4-H hopes to foster this relationship and strives to be a family affair.

The growing popularity of water-skiing has led to an increase in the number of accidents—and an increase also in the number of lawsuits. What are the basic legal rules that apply?

To begin with, the person piloting the towboat must exercise the special care called for by this particular sport. Consider a case:

A man towing a youthful skier slowed his boat, allowing slack to develop in the rope. Suddenly he shoved the throttle to FULL SPEED AHEAD. The boat leaped forward and threw the skier into the water, causing him to suffer a painful injury.

In a court hearing afterward, the boatman was ordered to pay substantial damages. The court said he should have foreseen the likely consequences of his sudden acceleration.

Responsibility rests too on other persons who happen to be boating in the vicinity. For example:

A man in a speedboat kept following right behind a young woman on skis. When she lost her balance and fell in his path, the speedboat ran her down.

This man likewise was held liable later in court. The judge said he had negligently created an extra hazard for the skier.

Of course, the skier as well is obliged not to take needless chances. In another case a man on water skis was well aware that another boat was moving nearby. On an impulse he tried to cut across the wake of his towboat. But he capsized directly in front of the second boat, which dealt him a fatal blow.

In the litigation which followed, the court held that the victim himself had been guilty of negligence. He should have shown better judgment, said the court, than to undertake a dangerous maneuver with another boat in the immediate offing.

Report Ohio Increase In Cattle Farms

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — The Ohio Farm Bureau reports that the number of cattle farms has increased in Ohio and the number of dairy farms in Ohio is down.

The number of farms with cattle in 1974 totaled 59,000, an increase of 2,000 over the previous year.

The number of dairy farms totaled 16,500 in 1974, 1,800 fewer than in 1973.

Baby Food Antitrust Action Filed

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — A lawsuit has been filed in federal court charging two of the nation's leading baby food producers and two of their subsidiaries with antitrust violations.

The suit, filed Friday in U.S. District Court by Baker Laboratories Inc. of Fort Washington, Pa., charged Abbott Laboratories Inc. of Chicago and Bristol-Myers of New York City with unfair business competition and restraint of trade in the production and distribution of baby food.

Also named in the suit were Ross Laboratories of Columbus, Ohio, a subsidiary of Abbott, and Mead & Johnson Inc., a subsidiary of Bristol-Myers.

Baker, which went out of business earlier this year, claimed in its suit that the four companies eliminated competition by inducing maternity hospitals and personnel to recommend their products to new mothers by offering formulas and nursery supplies to hospitals at favorable prices and often at no cost.

Baker claimed that Ross, which produces formulas under the trade name, Similac and Isomil, and Mead, producer of Enfamil and Prosobee, monopolized 90 per cent of the infant formula sales last year and that Baker was "eliminated from the market."

Baker, which until last December had produced formulas under the trade name Baker Infant Formula and Beechnut Infant Formula, is asking the court to grant unspecified damages and to enjoin the companies from further alleged unfair trade practices.

The court did not set a hearing date on the suit.

Find Ex-FHA Official Guilty

CINCINNATI, Ohio (AP) — A former high official of the Cincinnati office of the Federal Housing Administration was found guilty Friday in U.S. District Court of using his position to rehabilitate a home he planned to buy.

Wendell N. Brewer, 39, now of Miami, Fla., could face two years in prison and or fines up to $10,000, court officials said.

Brewer was the chief of property disposition. He was one of six FHA officials indicted by a special federal grand jury in December which probed operations of the Cincinnati office.

The charge said Brewer participated in decisions between Dec. 11, 1970 and March 19, 1971, on a house in which he had financial interest.

Brewer was also charged with influencing other federal officials in the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development to make rehabilitation and sale contracts for the house without disclosing he planned to purchase the property himself.

Brewer's attorneys said an appeal was planned.

Bumpers To Remain

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Department of Transportation says it is scrapping its proposal to weaken automobile bumper standards in view of evidence that carmakers can provide adequate protection with improved bumpers that aren't unduly heavy.

The department's National Highway Traffic Safety Administration had proposed to replace the requirement that front and rear automobile bumpers withstand a 5-mile-per-hour impact without damage. It would have set a new no-damage standard of 2½ m.p.h.

Automakers said the lower standard would enable them to reduce the cost and weight of new cars and increase gasoline mileage by installing lightweight bumpers.

But the insurance industry objected to any relaxation, saying the current standard had proven effective in limiting damage in low-speed crashes. And several key members of Congress criticized the proposal as a violation of the spirit of safety laws enacted in the early 1970s.

The safety administration attributed its abandonment of the proposal, however, to evidence presented during public hearings. It said it became convinced that "with careful design, manufacturers can produce bumpers that are not unduly heavy and which present net benefits for consumers."

Safety Is Target Of 4-H Bicycle Program In County

Bryan Prater, son of Mr. and Mrs. Marcus Prater, Route 1, Ashville, is shown with his bicycle which was his 4-H project during 1974.

One of the main concerns of parents who have children riding their bicycles on the streets and roads of the county is safety. The 4-H bicycle program is geared to meet this need. The project, particularly in the first year, teaches the member bicycle traffic laws and how to handle his bicycle on the road. Advisors and parents spend a great deal of time in school yards, church parking lots, or even on very little traveled streets, teaching the member what to do and what not to do. They are then taken out to get some experience on bicycle hikes.

The bicycle hikes are the highlight of the members' year. They are taken in small groups, with adult supervision, on short bike trips around the community.

The members, particularly after being in the project a couple of years, are taught how to care for and maintain their bikes, how to adjust seat and handlebar to meet his changing size, how to tighten and repair chains, and how to maintain air pressure in his tires or repair flats.

The fair provides the member an opportunity to show his family and friends what he has learned and just how well he can handle his bike. Each member must ride his bike on a street layout type course, thorough an obstacle course, and down a white line as slow as possible.

With more and more emphasis on biking in this country, this project will grow and grow. It is a project for older as well as younger members. Why can't 15 and 16 year-olds take long bike hikes with their parents and advisors? It provides the opportunity for exercise, fun and family entertainment. 4-H and biking are family affairs.

The true craftsman not only knows how to use the tools of his trade, he also has a good understanding of the materials with which he is working. The 4-H woodworking projects teaches the tools required for different jobs; also, a good working knowledge of the materials to be used for different projects.

But, knowledge alone is not enough. The other factor in craftsmanship is skill. To become a skillful woodworker requires much thoughtful practice at the bench. The woodworking 4-H projects offer you an opportunity to acquire both knowledge and skill. Through these projects you may discover an interesting hobby, or with more training and practice it could become your life's work.

In the woodworking projects you learn to identify and give proper care to tools, how to select the right tool for the job, and how to use that tool to get the desired results with the finished product. You learn how to prepare the wood for finishes and how to apply the finishes properly to get the most beautiful product.

What can you make? Some suggested articles are a foot stool, a what-not shelf, a book or magazine rack, a hall tree, a sleeve board, a birdhouse, a small kitchen table, a flower or grape arbor, a tool box, a flower box, a sewing cabinet or a workbench. These are some of the items you can make, but in addition you can make anything you want or need.

Just think of the fun of making things for the home or shop, and all the money you could save over buying the same thing at the store.

Stray Bullet Wounds Pair

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP)— Jerry Schmidt and his wife Barbara got a rude awakening early Friday.

Police in suburban Middleburg Heights said the two were jolted out of sleep at about 2 a.m. when a bullet ripped into Schmidt's foot and his wife's hip.

The Schmidts were treated at a nearby hospital and released.

Later that morning, a neighbor, David Foulkrod, 25, appeared at the police station with his lawyer. He told police he had fired his .30 cal. rifle at dogs nosing around garbage in front of his house.

Foulkrod was charged with assault and discharging a firearm and released on $1,000, police said.

Police said the bullet apparently ricocheted off the street before piercing the wall of Schmidt's home and coming to rest in the closet of Schmidt's 7-year-old daughter, Melinda.

Schmidt said he wasn't angry about it. "But I think it was a case of bad judgment and bad aim."

Horse Projects Provide Both Fun And Learning

The 4-H horse project has been one of the fastest growing areas throughout the state. Last year 142 members had horse projects in Pickaway County. The members learn not only how to ride and handle the horse more safely, but also how to care for and groom the animals.

The project is set up on a basis that leads the member in the first year through the basic knowledge of horsemanship, to a point where the member has become an all around horse person. The member learns about horse nutrition, health care, and selection of brood stock that builds a good horse business.

The clubs deal with career opportunities in the horse field. The career aspect of most 4-H projects is a very important aspect. Most high school age members really have not made definite plans concerning their future. It is hoped through 4-H projects, such as the horse project, they will build a better awareness of the opportunities available to them.

The horse project is not all serious educational experiences, however. There are trail rides, pre-fair clinics, fair shows, and many open shows throughout the year.

Steelmakers See Decline In Imports

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP)— Last year's high demand for steel brought this year's records in imports, and at high prices, but steelmakers expect imports to fall and domestic production to rise soon, Industry Week says.

The Cleveland-based magazine says domestic steel shipments fell in February but are expected to return to near the January level this month. But steelmakers also expect shipments during the first half of this year to average about one million tons below the 1974 average of nine million tons monthly, the magazine reports.

Yet despite the mild gloom for the first six months, the president of the Steel Service Center Institute here, Robert G. Welch, says "we could again be living with a steel shortage before the year is out," if an expected economic upturn develops.

Industry Week says that "mills have little or no inventory of steel, having shipped it out in the last two years while demand exceeded the overall supply.

"As a result, any sharp increase in demand would mean mills could ship steel only as fast as they could make it," the magazine concludes.

Steel imports for the past four months set records, the latest being 1.8 million net tons valued at $376.81 per ton, compared with $240.36 on year earlier and well above U.S. price levels. But the orders were made in mid-1974, when steel supply was less than demand, and bookings for second-quarter imports are down sharply, the steelmen say.

Domestically, January mill shipments were estimated at 8.5 million net tons. February's shipments were figured as about seven million.

Industry Week estimated February's domestic raw steel production was 10.82 million net tons, compared with 11.51 million in January. But the magazine also estimated that February's daily output averaged 386,500 tons, compared with January's 371,232 tons daily.

The annual rate of total U.S. raw steel production for the first two months this year was 138.2 million net tons, compared with 1974's 145.5 million tons, the magazine added.

Safety Is Target Of 4-H Bicycle Program In County

Bryan Prater, son of Mr. and Mrs. Marcus Prater, Route 1, Ashville, is shown with his bicycle which was his 4-H project during 1974.

One of the main concerns of parents who have children riding their bicycles on the streets and roads of the county is safety. The 4-H bicycle program is geared to meet this need. The project, particularly in the first year, teaches the member bicycle traffic laws and how to handle his bicycle on the road. Advisors and parents spend a great deal of time in school yards, church parking lots, or even on very little traveled streets, teaching the member what to do and what not to do. They are then taken out to get some experience on bicycle hikes.

The bicycle hikes are the highlight of the members' year. They are taken in small groups, with adult supervision, on short bike trips around the community.

The members, particularly after being in the project a couple of years, are taught how to care for and maintain their bikes, how to adjust seat and handlebar to meet his changing size, how to tighten and repair chains, and how to maintain air pressure in his tires or repair flats.

The fair provides the member an opportunity to show his family and friends what he has learned and just how well he can handle his bike. Each member must ride his bike on a street layout type course, through an obstacle course, and down a white line as slow as possible.

With more and more emphasis on biking in this country, this project will grow and grow. It is a project for older as well as younger members. Why can't 15 and 16 year-olds take long bike hikes with their parents and advisors? It provides the opportunity for exercise, fun and family entertainment. 4-H and biking are family affairs.

Fast-Food Industry Goes International

WASHINGTON (AP) — The nation's fast-food industry, which has put mountains of fried chicken and billions of hamburgers into paper bags for hungry Americans, is planning more outlets around the world for people to grab a bite on the run.

The Agriculture Department says that by 1979, eight leading U.S. companies expect to have more than 6,400 fast-food outlets in foreign countries, nearly quadruple those in operation now.

The No. 1 country targeted for expansion by almost all companies is Japan, followed by Australia, Europe and Canada, according to a study published by the department's Economic Research Service.

Without any adjustment for inflation, retail sales in foreign countries by 1979 are expected to total at least $2 billion a year, compared with $568 million estimated in 1973, the report said.

Philip B. Dvoskin, who prepared the report for his agency, said the 1979 projections indicate a potential market for U.S. suppliers of about $820 million annually compared with about $230 million in 1973.

But Dvoskin told a reporter that the term "potential" means just that. Part of the food used in the foreign establishments is provided locally and U.S. exporters will have to compete for the expanding market.

In his report, Dvoskin said that in the United States there is a trend to more company-owned outlets rather than franchised operations. The reason for this seems to be that companies want better control than franchises afford, he said.

"On the foreign side, the emphasis is almost reversed, due mainly to the myriad of local government regulations, language difficulties and so forth," Dvoskin said.

Consequently, it's a common practice for fast-food companies to enter into agreements with local trading companies or individuals to operate the retail outlets in those countries.

"This is particularly true in such developed areas as Japan, Europe and Australia, and accounts in part for the more optimistic expansion plans on the foreign side than for the domestic market," Dvoskin said.

Carryout food also will continue expanding in the United States, according to the survey of the eight major firms which account for more than one-half of annual sales by fast-food shops. The report said those firms are expected to have more than 25,000 outlets by 1979, a 54 per cent increase from now.

Leadership Camp Is Exciting

By BONNIE BOLENDER

Leadership is finding the best in others, discovering the best in yourself, having fun while really getting something accomplished, loving and accepting others, and being what you truly want to be.

Camp is dancing, meeting new friends, experiencing new and exciting things, making memories you will enjoy looking back upon forever.

Add both words and their descriptions together, and you can still only begin to realize what happens when you attend the State Junior Leadership 4-H Camp. It is an inspiring, thrilling, and life-changing experience that will influence you throughout life. It's great to know that all this came about because of our great 4-H Program and the little effort it took on my part to fill out the Ohio Report Form.

Leadership Camp is a weeklong workshop session that really helps you to develop many talents and skills in such areas as communication, recreation, and presenting yourself to the public. We learned all about what we really were like and what we could become. But we didn't merely learn every day, we lived these lessons during the sessions as well as when we were dancing, playing volleyball, swimming and hiking.

State Junior Leadership 4-H Camp was so great in so many ways, that I can't do a very good job of describing it for you. So why don't you try it for yourself? If you're in 4-H, you have the chance to fill out the Ohio Report Form. If you aren't in 4-H — well, you can always join and enjoy the many opportunities and experiences that will come your way through 4-H and such things as Leadership Camp. Believe me, it will be well worth your time — well worth it!!

Sorbitol Solution Being Recalled

WASHINGTON (AP) — More than 500 gallons of sorbitol solution are being recalled by the manufacturers because two bottles in the same lot were found to contain formaldehyde, the Food and Drug Administration says.

Sorbitol is used medically to relieve excess pressure within the eye or spine, as a diuretic and to dilute other medicines. It also is used as a sweetener in diabetic diets, food processing and candymaking.

The sorbitol involved in the recall announced Friday is a 70 per cent solution distributed under the trade name "Sorbo" by the Amend Drug and Chemical Co. and the Ruger Chemical Co., which share facilities and equipment in Irvington, N.J., the FDA said.

The affected lot bears the number C712314 on all the labels. Portions of it were distributed in the states of Pennsylvania, Texas, New York, Wisconsin, Kansas, North Carolina, South Carolina, Ohio, Michigan, Tennessee, Virginia, West Virginia, Maryland, Massachusetts, Michigan, Connecticut, New Hampshire and New Jersey.

It's Not Necessary To Live On Farm To Have Dairy Project

The dairy calf project is just one of the dairy projects offered to 4-H members in Pickaway County. Other projects that are available in the dairy field are dairy goats and dairy foods. You can see you don't have to live on a farm to get into 4-H dairy activities.

The dairy animal projects are geared to help members learn about animal nutrition, diseases and selection of breeding stock. The projects are set up so that a member may take the same animal for several years and learn about the different problems involved in each stage of development. In this way, if a member wants to build a dairy herd for his adult life, he will have a good start by the time he is 19 years old. The members can take an increasing number of animals as their dairy projects each year and thus build their herds.

It is hoped, through these projects, the members will learn all aspects of the dairy industry. The career aspect of the dairy business is very important. Dairy clubs explore careers in dairy technology, artificial insemination, milk processing, transportation, and sales.

The 4-H dairy program offers many things for a well-rounded approach.

Sewing Clubs Teach Members How To Make Own Clothing

Jessie, Cathy and Cindy Woodruff, daughters of Mr. and Mrs. John Woodruff, Route 2, Ashville, are shown wearing the outfits they made as part of their 4-H clothing projects.

JESSIE, CATHY, CINDY WOODRUFF

Everyone likes to be complimented on their clothes. It just makes us feel good to have someone say, "You sure have a pretty outfit on today!" And it would make us feel even better to be able to say, "Thanks, I made it myself!"

The 4-H clothing projects are designed to teach members to make their own clothes. And with today's prices, it sure helps the family budget to be able to make our clothes for a lot less than we can buy them for. From the first year skirt to a completely tailored outfit, the 4-H member who takes a clothing project can be proud of her work. You will learn the very basics of sewing, such as threading a needle, what kind of material to purchase, laying a pattern on the material, how to cut out the garment correctly, correct steps in constructing a garment, etc., to mastering even the most difficult sewing techniques. A lot of satisfaction can be gained from being able to wear something you have made yourself.

Besides making an outfit, a 4-H clothing member also learns how to buy or make accessories to wear with her garment; how to model her garment properly; learns how posture, good grooming (clean hair, well manicured nails, etc.) all contribute to the "total look" of an individual.

4-H clothing members also participate in club meetings, demonstrations, tours, and a variety of other activities available through 4-H. Members are judged at the county fair, and if you have never been to one of the 4-H clothing judging days at the county fair you have missed quite an experience.

Why not join a 4-H clothing club today? There is at least one in every township in our county. Join the "in" group of young people who are learning how to be creative in the fashion world of today.

Entomology Offered In 4-H

By VERNON ELLIOTT

One of the many projects areas offered to 4-H'ers is Entomology — the study of insects in which there are two projects, Beekeeping and Exploring Our Insect World.

Beekeeping is a project which requires filling three books in nine years. The books have an outline of knowledge which is helpful and the names of free supplemental government bulletins you should study. All of these are easy to comprehend and interesting.

Ideas for your yearly fair exhibits are outlined in the project book, many of which I have followed. Your exhibits are sure to be noticed and commented on due to the small number of Entomology projects. It is easy to obtain blue ribbons and medals in beekeeping for you are judged on your knowledge and not your animals development, and there are less people to divide the awards among. Beekeeping has won me blue ribbons, Entomology medal and outside of 4-H, an Excellent and a Superior at Our school Science Fair. Anyone can do the same. It isn't necessary to own your own bees — I do for some pocket money can be made on the honey. If you don't own you can work with a knowledgeable beekeeper near you.

The other project basically involves catching insects, identifying them and displaying them at the fair. It also involves an interesting project book. The award opportunities are the same as beekeeping.

Both give excellent backgrounds for a career in Entomology, Biology, Horticulture and many Agriculture fields. Now the project is taken in An Agriculture Club, but if enough interest is shown an Entomology club will be formed.

In closing I must say I hope I have "bugged" you into taking an entomology project.

It isn't necessary to own your own bees — I do for some pocket money can be made on the honey. If you don't own you can work with a knowledgeable beekeeper near you.

The other project basically involves catching insects, identifying them and displaying them at the fair. It also involves an interesting project book. The award opportunities are the same as beekeeping.

Both give excellent backgrounds for a career in Entomology, Biology, Horticulture and many Agriculture fields. Now the project is taken in an Agriculture Club, but if enough interest is shown an Entomology club will be formed.

In closing I must say I hope I have "bugged" you into taking an entomology project.

Leadership Camp Is Exciting

By BONNIE BOLENDER

Leadership is finding the best in others, discovering the best in yourself, having fun while really getting something accomplished, loving and accepting others, and being what you truly want to be.

Camp is dancing, meeting new friends, experiencing new and exciting things, making memories you will enjoy looking back upon forever.

Add both words and their descriptions together, and you can still only begin to realize what happens when you attend the State Junior Leadership 4-H Camp. It is an inspiring, thrilling, and life-changing experience that will influence you throughout life. It's great to know that all this came about because of our great 4-H Program and the little effort it took on my part to fill out the Ohio Report Form.

Leadership Camp is a weeklong workshop session that really helps you to develop many talents and skills in such areas as communication, recreation, and presenting yourself to the public. We learned all about what we really were like and what we could become. But we didn't merely learn every day, we lived these lessons during the sessions as well as when we were dancing, playing volleyball, swimming and hiking.

State Junior Leadership 4-H Camp was so great in so many ways, that I can't do a very good job of describing it for you. So why don't you try it for yourself? If you're in 4-H, you have the chance to fill out the Ohio Report Form. If you aren't in 4-H — well, you can always join and enjoy the many opportunities and experiences that will come your way through 4-H and such things as Leadership Camp. Believe me, it will be well worth your time — well worth it!!

Sorbitol Solution Being Recalled

WASHINGTON (AP) — More than 500 gallons of sorbitol solution are being recalled by the manufacturers because two bottles in the same lot were found to contain formaldehyde, the Food and Drug Administration says.

Sorbitol is used medically to relieve excess pressure within the eye or spine, as a diuretic and to dilute other medicines. It also is used as a sweetener in diabetic diets, food processing and candymaking.

The sorbitol involved in the recall announced Friday is a 70 per cent solution distributed under the trade name "Sorbo" by the Amend Drug and Chemical Co. and the Ruger Chemical Co., which share facilities and equipment in Irvington, N.J., the FDA said.

The affected lot bears the number C712314 on all the labels. Portions of it were distributed in the states of Pennsylvania, Texas, New York, Wisconsin, Kansas, North Carolina, South Carolina, Ohio, Michigan, Tennessee, Virginia, West Virginia, Maryland, Massachusetts, Michigan, Connecticut, New Hampshire and New Jersey.

all areas. Its chief and ultimate goal is the prevention of birth defects. With polio generally confined the group has turned its efforts toward this.

At the present time in our country there are some 15 million Americans alive today who are affected by birth defects. More than 200,000 infants are born with physical or mental damage each year. Every hour 25 are born in this country with defects; some are minor, but others drastically impair the quality of life forever, unless there is help for them.

According to statistics furnished by the Society, about 20 per cent of all birth defects are hereditary. Another 20 per cent are caused by environmental factors such as disease, poor nutrition of the mother, drugs, radiation and certain prescribed medications. The remaining 60 per cent are due to the interaction of heredity and environment.

Babies with low birthweight are likely to have a defect even though low birthweight is not an actual cause. About 1 per cent of low birthweight babies are born to teenage mothers.

The monies collected by the Society are categorized into Research, Service and Education. Many research programs are constantly in progress seeking ways of decreasing the possibility of birth defects by genetics, as well as by improvement in environment.

There is an extensive education program to inform the public and prospective mothers as to prevention. The society is the purchaser and distributor of much equipment for hospitals and services for those needing it. They provide films, speakers, nursing services, scholarships and many other items to the general public for the eradication of the problem and help to those currently afflicted. The Salk Institute is also supported by the Agency.

Area headquarters for the March of Dimes is 1384 Grandview Avenue, Columbus, Ohio.

Master's Degree By Mail Available

LONG BEACH, Calif. (AP) — If some Long Beach residents want to earn a master's degree without ever setting foot on a campus they can do it through a mail-order degree operating out of Bishop, Calif.

It's a way airline pilots, elderly persons, shut-ins and residents in far-away places can earn master's degrees from the California State University and college system.

The degree program operated by Dominguez Hills State College is an MA in humanities, including courses in music, art and philosophy. It is designed to give students a broad humanities background while allowing them to specialize in topics that interest them.

Each summer in June, three one-week camps are conducted in this beautiful 500-acre camping area for any teenager having completed the ninth grade and showing an interest in the outdoors. Sunday, the first day of camp, is just a get-acquainted day with a brief orientation and square dance in the evening for all campers.

Assignment Set

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Federal Communications Commission announced Friday it has received an application from the Ohio Educational Television Network Commission at Kettering, Ohio, for voluntary assignment of its license to University Regional Broadcasting Inc.

Then Monday through Thursday classes begin in such courses as tree identification, forest ecology, silviculture, and forest products. Each class is about two hours long, and are always informal and interesting since they are held outdoors in the clean woodlands for which this area is famous.

After 4 o'clock when classes are dismissed, the campers are given about two hours of free time in which they may enjoy horseback riding, hiking, swimming, shuffleboard, ping-pong, tennis, volleyball, softball, or football. Each evening, programs are planned that include campfires, a movie about Ohio's woodlands, "Uncle Pierre's Talent Night," and a wood-chopper's exhibition.

After dinner on Thursday, a test is given to campers covering what was learned during the week. Friday is declared a Recreation Day with no classes; and campers are free to go on canoe trips, learn how to prune and shear trees with the foresters, or just swim and take part in any of the other recreational activities available at the camp.

Saturday morning following breakfast, camp is dismissed. Most of the campers are sorry to leave though, and they linger around long afterward taking pictures, saying their good-byes to friends, and getting addresses of other campers so they can write.

And so ends one of the most fun-filled and educational weeks that these teenagers will ever enjoy.

MARK GEARHART

Model Airplane Construction One Of Newer 4-H Programs

Mark Gearhart, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Gearhart, of Northridge Road, Circleville, is shown with a few of his model airplane 4-H projects.

Model airplanes as a 4-H project? What can a member learn from building model airplanes:

Model airplane construction is one of our newer 4-H projects. There is much to be learned from such a project. The members learn about aerodynamics, about air transportation and also about possible careers in the area of aerodynamics.

The most important thing members get out of the project though, is really three-fold: how to work with their hands, how to develop patience, and how to get along with others in a group.

Sometimes it seems we all put too much emphasis on the project. The project is just a means of getting the members together. They learn about group interaction, about how to conduct meetings, leadership and citizenship. We hope to develop blue ribbon members and not blue ribbon projects. It is important members learn it is good to achieve, but it is also important members learn that you have achieved by participating and completing what you have started out to do. This is an important lesson to learn in life, we can't all be number one but we keep striving and achievement comes through participation.

WORK AND PLAY TOGETHER

Pickaway County 4-H Clubs offer you a choice. From approximately 175 different projects, 4-H gives you an opportunity to learn and to make many new acquaintances.

BRUCE AND CARL DEBRUIN

Electric Clubs Offer Educational Projects

Bruce and Carl DeBruin Jr., sons of Mr. and Mrs. Carl DeBruin Sr., Route 5, are shown with their 4-H electricity projects. Bruce made a time delayed silicone controlled rectifier which is used in the photography dark room process. Carl made an electric number game.

The 4-H member in electricity starts out with the very basics in electricity and progresses over the years to some very, complicated electronics projects.

Electricity helps make living more comfortable and efficient. The 4-H program helps members learn about the fundamentals of electricity and discover new and exciting ways to use it. Your home has hundreds of dollars worth of electrical appliances and equipment. All of these things will last longer and perform better if they are properly used and cared for, and if minor repairs are made promptly. The 4-H member gains over the years a good working knowledge which will allow him to help himself in these areas.

Skill is an important part of the electricity program. What a member will learn in the 4-H electric program will include a lot of "how" information; how to substitute motors for muscles; how to light an area properly; how to recognize the need for and how to improve wiring.

After you have mastered the fundamentals of electricity, you probably will want to plan some new and improved ways to use it. There's practically no limit to what you can make or do.

Club Congress Is Fantastic Experience

By BARBARA BOLENDER

Ohio 4-H Club Congress was a fantastic experience for me, as I learned first hand about our state government. The four day camp, from June 17-20, was held at Ohio State University. The theme this year was "4-H - More in '74".

The three days were filled with speakers, workshops, learning and doing sessions and lots of fun with 4-Hers from all over the state.

Each day was sub-titled to expound on the theme. It started on Monday with "On the Go, Ahead", to "Rolling Your Stone" and climaxing with "We Can Make It Happen" on Wednesday, 4-H Government Day.

Government Day held special interest for me. This was the day we held a mock legislative session in the State House Chambers. 4-H Club Congress is only one of two youth groups allowed to use the legislative chambers. It is quite an honor.

I had been selected from our county to be a Key Legislator. Key Legislators, one from each county, served as either an officer on the floor or as a speaker for or against the bill, in one of the three House sessions. The bill this year was House-Senate Joint Resolution No. 44 - Gun Control Legislation. The Key Legislators wishing to speak on the bill, had decided before Club Congress started on which side to be, for or against.

Set Episcopal Church Trial

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP)— Five Episcopal priests will sit at Sandusky, starting May 13, to hear the case of the Rev. Peter Beebe of Oberlin, the Episcopal priest who allowed two women to reside at communion in his church.

Beebe was charged with disobeying church law after he permitted two irregularly ordained women priests to celebrate the sacraments in December, the Ohio Diocese said.

Another priest in the diocese, the Rev. Robert Hall, also might face such sanctions. The Rev. Mr. Hall said he would permit a woman, the Rev. Allison Cheek, to celebrate communion next Sunday at St. Paul's Episcopal Church in Steubenville.

They then came with a prepared speech and-or amendments to the bill, according to their views. I chose to be an officer and was elected clerk of the second session. I got to sit up front, just below the House Speaker, and I counted votes.

The two previous days, Key Legislators held special meetings, organizing our sessions, lining up the pro and con speakers and rehearsing the parliamentary procedure to be used in our sessions. We were headed up by Judy Miller, a former delegate to Club Congress and now an Ohio Legislative Page. Miss Miller, along with some special speakers, helped us make our mock sessions as real to life as possible. Everyone was quite happy to see our hard work pay off with smooth and interesting sessions.

It was quite stimulating to hear speeches and opinions written by youth my age. It made me feel proud to be a part of a great organization like 4-H, that gives us the opportunity to learn about and experience a working government now, so when we are older we will be better prepared to serve our government as an active voter, an interested legislative agent bringing news back to our organizations or even as a Representative or Senator.

Club Congress was not only a learning experience in government but also a learning experience in people. I met so many new friends and I feel I learned more from them and our leaders and I ever thought possible. Three days are a short time but those three days held so many fantastic experiences for me that it will last me the rest of my life. I appreciate the opportunities 4-H gives me and urge everyone to join in and support the 4-H program.

Motorcycling Is Exciting

ROGER AND RICK McCABE

Roger and Mike McCabe, sons of Mr. and Mrs. Robert McCabe, Route 2, are shown with their 4-H motorcycle project.

Motorcycling, and especially dirt riding, is an exciting and growing sport. Last year we developed a pilot project in motorcycles.

The members learn how to handle their bikes safely. Motorcycling can be a rather dangerous hobby if you don't know how to handle your bike. They also learn how to maintain and make minor adjustments to their bikes. Something is always getting shaken a little out of adjustment. If you don't know how to take care of these problems yourself it could be a rather expensive hobby. You learn how to adjust the carburetor, set the points, change the spark plugs and make other minor adjustment.

The best part of the whole project, though, is when the club gets together for a ride. It's almost like a motor-cross track. There are hills to climb, jumps to make, and the thrill of members and machine matching their ability against the terrain.

Of course, the fair is an important part of the motorcycle program. The members are tested on just how well they can handle their bikes. For those of you who ride you know it is harder to ride slow than fast. The motorcycles at the fair must ride through an obstacle course as slow as possible. This is a different type of challenge for the members and one that gives them the chance to show others just how well he and his machine have become one.

bill this year was House-Senate Joint Resolution No. 44 - Gun Control Legislation. The Key Legislators wishing to speak on the bill, had decided before Club Congress started on which side to be, for or against.

Set Episcopal Church Trial

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP)— Five Episcopal priests will sit at Sandusky, starting May 13, to hear the case of the Rev. Peter Beebe of Oberlin, the Episcopal priest who allowed two women to reside at communion in his church.

Beebe was charged with disobeying church law after he permitted two irregularly ordained women priests to celebrate the sacraments in December, the Ohio Diocese said.

Another priest in the diocese, the Rev. Robert Hall, also might face such sanctions. The Rev. Mr. Hall said he would permit a woman, the Rev. Allison Cheek, to celebrate communion next Sunday at St. Paul's Episcopal Church in Steubenville.

They then came with a prepared speech and/or amendments to the bill, according to their views. I chose to be an officer and was elected clerk of the second session. I got to sit up front, just below the House Speaker, and I counted votes.

The two previous days, Key Legislators held special meetings, organizing our sessions, lining up the pro and con speakers and rehearsing the parliamentary procedure to be used in our sessions. We were headed up by Judy Miller, a former delegate to Club Congress and now an Ohio Legislative Page. Miss Miller, along with some special speakers, helped us make our mock sessions as real to life as possible. Everyone was quite happy to see our hard work pay off with smooth and interesting sessions.

It was quite stimulating to hear speeches and opinions written by youth

my age. It made me feel proud to be a part of a great organization like 4-H, that gives us the opportunity to learn about and experience a working government now, so when we are older we will be better prepared to serve our government as an active voter, an interested legislative agent bringing news back to our organizations or even as a Representative or Senator.

Club Congress was not only a learning experience in government but also a learning experience in people. I met so many new friends and I feel I learned more from them and our leaders and I ever thought possible. Three days are a short time but those three days held so many fantastic experiences for me that it will last me the rest of my life. I appreciate the opportunities 4-H gives me and urge everyone to join in and support the 4-H program.

Gun Safety Program First Pilot 4-H Project In County

Roger Frazier, son of Mrs. Juanita Archer, Franklin Street, is shown with his gun safety project.

The gun safety project is another area where 4-H is striving to educate people 9-19 years old how to have fun safely. Pickaway County was the first county in the state to offer a gun safety program to 4-H members. It started here because people were concerned and wanted to do something about a community problem. This was a pilot project a few years ago, but is now available across the State of Ohio.

Each year in Ohio there are a number of accidental shootings while men and boys are out hunting. If even one person is shot because he was careless or did not know how to handle his gun, that is too many. The gun safety program is aimed at educating members how to use firearms safely and effectively.

4-H members use B-B guns to learn their gun safety rules. They are taught how to handle a gun in the home, on the target range and under field conditions. Also, they learn how to become better marksmen and more effective hunters.

It is only natural for the young to want to go hunting with their families and friends. However, before they go into the field to hunt with rifle or shotgun, they should be carefully instructed how to use them effectively.

TINA AND BONNIE RIFFLE

Tina and Bonnie Riffle, daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Victor Riffle, of Riffle's Trailer Park, Circleville, are shown with their 4-H creative arts projects. How creative are you? Can you take an old piece of junk, or a piece of driftwood, and see beauty in it? Do you like to draw, or decorate cakes? Let your imagination run wild... the creative arts program in 4-H gives you that chance. You can do anything you want as long as you are creative.

It is rather difficult to see in the picture, but between the two girls is an animal figure one of them made just out of some old wire. The other projects illustrate what you do with drawing and painting.

Citizenship Is Part Of 4-H Program

By MOLLY HAMRICK

This summer I had the opportunity to visit our nation's capital for seven days and spent these seven days with forty-five kids from Ohio and four hundred fifty others from a variety of states. The group from Ohio became one big family; everyone had his own contribution to make and we all became good friends.

The objective of Citizenship Short Course was to teach us how to be better leaders and citizens of our own community and county. Another goal was to show us how our national government works. The group met with Congressman Harsha and visited Senate and House Chambers.

Our housing was at the National 4-H Center which was located in Chevy Chase, Maryland, and transportation was provided in Washington by D. C. Transit. We also rode to and from Washington on a bus.

While in Washington we toured the Capitol and many of the historic places. The Lincoln Memorial and Arlington Cemetery seemed to be the most impressive to me. We visited many other monuments and buildings such as the Washington Monument, the Smithsonian Institute, The United States Department of Agriculture and the Kennedy Center.

Panel discussions were held on community resource development; art, music and drama; citizenship; our environment and its pollution.

I will never be able to forget the good times and the friendly people I met in Washington. I'm thankful for this opportunity and would like to again thank those who made it possible. I also hope that if you are given a chance to fill out an Ohio Report Form that you will take the advantage.

Mennonites Help World's Hungry

ORRVILLE, Ohio (AP)—The world's hungry are getting a helping hand again this year from this nation's Mennonites.

"We believe in living the principles of Christ," said Willis Neuenchwander of Orrville, organizer of the 1975 WayneMedina County Relief Committee's beef canners.

By the time the Mennonite central committee's traveling cannery finishes its 12-state journey next month, members of the tiny sect will have produced 260,000 cans of beef for those in need around the globe. The cannery is on its way home and the effort more than 80 per cent completed, he said.

"Of course, we've done that before," Neuenchwander said of the total. "Things had dropped off in recent years because of the cost of the meat—but we're getting back up there this year."

Next stop for the portable cannery is Bern, Ind. Then after two or three days, it will go on westward into such states as Oklahoma and Iowa before being stored until it is needed again next year. The local group finished its operation Friday night.

With 60 working at a time, up to 400 volunteers from 10 Mennonite, Amish and other area churches produced 14,970 cans of beef for international distribution and 1,260 cans of broth for charitable use locally, Mrs. Neuenchwander said.

Her husband said two factors were in the group's favor—easy availability of cans and a decline in the cost of beef.

Even so, the 55,000 pounds of beef they use, 80 head, cost $24,000, he said. Area churches and individuals put up the funds.

Volunteers work 16-hour days, trimming away fat, cutting meat into chunks, boiling it, canning it and finally heating it again in a pressure cooker that holds 140 cans.

The cans are labeled, boxed and sent to committee headquarters in Akron, Pa., for distribution. The cannery travels six months a year, producing food for orphanages, schools, hospitals, disaster victims and other projects.

Earlier, the assembly stopped for a project by Mennonites in Holmes and Tuscarawas counties and will take part in a similar operation in Middlefield, Geauga County.

Fostoria Candidate Wants Secession

That's the ticket one mayoral candidate here is running on.

Vatican Eyes Question Of Israel

CINCINNATI, Ohio (AP) — The Vatican will include the question of Israel as part of its new dialogue with the Jewish community, according to Bishop Joseph L. Bernardin, president of the National Conference on Catholic Bishops and United States Catholic Conference.

"I fully expect the Vatican Commission to address itself to this particular question," Bishop Bernardin, head of the Catholic Archdiocese of Cincinnati, said Sunday during a dialogue with Dr. Alfred Gottschalk, president of the Hebrew Union College-Jewish Institute of Religion. "I think this will be one of the topics of the ongoing dialogue in the future."

Both religious leaders appeared during a television question-and-answer session. They analyzed the recent Vatican statement calling on Catholics to enter into dialogue, study, worship and joint social efforts with members of the Jewish community.

Dr. Gottschalk, who heads Reform Judaism's institution of higher learning, stressed that an "urgent need exists for our Catholic brethren to confront the reality of Israel theologically and to understand its real meaning to Jews all over the world."

He said Catholics must comprehend "the growing dimension of importance that Israel holds to the Jewish people both from a religious and day-to-day living point of view."

Bishop Bernardin assured members of the Jewish community that the purpose of the Catholic-Jewish dialogue was not conversion.

Insurance agent Lawrence Strahm wants this northwestern Ohio town of 16,000 to secede from Wood, Hancock and Seneca counties.

Strahm, a native of nearby Terry who says he has lived 27 of his 47 years here, reasons that his town not only is split along county lines but is an industrial area in an agricultural region.

He says the arrangement costs the townspeople state and federal aid.

"I think Fostoria as a county seat would be more capable of serving the people than the county seats where they are now," he says.

"I think enough residents are dissatisfied now with the departments and agencies of the counties and with taxes that they will go for this and find it would alleviate some of their problems," Strahm says.

The largest part of Fostoria lies in Seneca County; the west side is split between Wood and Hancock counties. That creates jurisdictional difficulties for officials.

"Where others can walk across the street to file papers, we have to drive," says Fostoria Auditor Clarence Jacob. The auditor says he often spends most of a day traveling between three courthouses filing papers.

The arrangement also means filing everything in triplicate and often doing three times the work. Jacob says that when Fostoria wants to borrow money, he has to supply and take data from three counties.

Strahm believes Fostoria could obtain enough land from the three counties to become a county itself without reducing any county below the 400 square-mile requirement.

The secessionist movement also would require 20,000 signatures of area residents approving the change, legislative approval of a referendum and then a vote by the people.

Strahm, who wants the Democratic nomination but says he would run as an independent, would be one of four Democrats opposing Republican Mayor Dale Mills, should the mayor seek re-election.

Mobile Extension Office Located At Pumpkin Show

This trailer was used during the 1974 Pumpkin Show to tell about the Cooperative Extension Service, to inform people of the issues in the fall election and to build leadership in older 4-H youths.

A big part of the 4-H program is to build leadership among the members not only in their local clubs but also in their community. Each club has officers and each meeting is conducted by this set of officers. Also, each club has a community service project. The members look around their community, decide on how they as a group can make it a better place to live, and work together to help solve the problem.

During this last year's Pumpkin Show some members from the Junior Leadership Club helped the agents man the trailer shown above. They conducted an opinion poll of Pickaway County residents above the age of 17. The poll consisted of questions as to whether or not county government should undertake certain projects. The trailer also contained all the candidates and issues which were on the ballot this fall. This way people could study the questions before they went into the polling place. The county service directory, which told what office provides what service and where it is located, was distributed to Pickaway County residents.

The Junior Leaders who helped man the trailer and helped compile the service directory received an invaluable experience in local government and leadership training.

Junior Leader Club Open To Any 4-Hers

By SCOTT HARMOUNT

The Junior Leaders Club is for members of any county 4-H club who are 14 years old, have been in 4-H for at least one year and who carry at least one project.

Junior Leadership is a separate project area and its purpose is to help advisors and younger 4-H members with their projects, books, or any questions which might arise. There are approximately 45 Junior Leaders throughout Pickaway County who belong to the county club. Teens may be Junior Leaders without actually being in the county club by simply helping the advisor or younger members of their local club. To be a member of the county club they must attend 6 of our 12 meetings and fill out a project book. The county club meets once a month in the 4-H and Grange Building and has a program and discusses projects which could be beneficial to the county 4-H program.

The program for 1975 has already begun but there are many exciting and educational programs left. The January program was a presentation on Citizenship Short Course and Ohio 4-H Club Congress by Molly Hamrick and Scott Harmount. The February program will be Junior Leaders training session to be conducted by Dan Brinker, Bob Winter and Barb Hedges. The purpose of this program is to give the new members an idea of the responsibilities of a Junior Leader and how they can help in their local club. Some of the highlights in this year's program are a trip to the Ohio Historical Museum and Ohio Village, Interstate Exchange of Junior Leaders, swim party, hayride, and the banquet at the end of the year.

This year the Junior Leaders Club is going to start a new project area called "Mrs. G. Arden," which is an elementary gardening project. Each of the Junior Leaders in the county club will have about 5 kids which they will supervise, and 3 of these groups will meet together as a club with the Junior Leaders as advisors. If this project is well responded to, it will then next year become part of the regular 4-H project areas.

West Virginia Hikes Pay

CHARLESTON, W.Va. (AP) — Pay raises for teachers and state police and funding for projects from a medical school to a hall of fame were swiftly dispatched to the governor Sunday as the West Virginia Legislature extended itself past its regular session.

The 60-day session ended at midnight Saturday, but the legislators approved a resolution stretching it until April 14 — although it took two resolutions and much confusion to do so.

After the Sunday session that dealt with all pending bills and crept to 2 a.m. today, both chambers adjourned until 7 p.m. April 11, presumably then to override any gubernatorial vetoes.

The bill increasing the basic annual salaries of public school teachers by $500 across-the-board passed by votes of 27-0 in the Senate and 86-2 in the House. The $11.2 million measure is a conference committee compromise of differing Senate and House bills.

Another unanimous Senate vote sent to the governor a conference bill raising monthly pay of all state police grades by $55. The House approved the measure Saturday.

Breeding Gilt, Market Hog Projects Most Popular

NOLAN HINES

Nolan Hines, son of Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Hines, Sr., Route 1, Ashville, is shown with his breeding gilt project.

The breeding gilt project and the market hog project are probably two of the most popular projects in Pickaway County. Last year 4-H members in Pickaway County showed over 300 hogs at the county fair.

The breeding gilt project helps members learn some of the important things about choosing and raising a gilt that will make a good brood sow. The members are taught to look for an animal that has a clean cut head, an evenly turned topline, a stretchy body, a heavily muscled ham, a well developed rudder section, and is a rugged boned individual.

Physician Speaks On Abortions

BOSTON (AP) — Dr. Kenneth C. Edelin, the physician convicted of manslaughter in the death of a fetus he aborted in a legal operation, says he would be happy if he never had to perform another abortion.

"But it's not my choice," the Boston City Hospital doctor said Sunday. "That choice cannot be made by religious or political leaders, by physicians or by juries. That choice must be made by women."

Sean Connery Said Married

LONDON (AP) — A London newspaper says that actor Sean Connery, the movies' James Bond, has secretly married a French Moroccan portrait painter.

The Daily Mirror said in a story from Marrakesh, Morocco, where Connery is making a movie, that the bride was Micheline Roquebrune, 39. It said she had been married twice before.

Connery, 44, and actress Diane Cilento were divorced in 1973 after 10 years of marriage.

The paper said that a friend of the couple reported they were married in Casablanca about four months ago.

The goal of both the breeding and market hog projects is to teach the members to raise pigs in a profitable way. This means the member should learn to raise an animal which will make him some money as well as a high producing, high quality, lean and juicy end product.

The member is expected to learn to assume the responsibility that goes with managing and learning about swine production. They are expected to practice good sportsmanship in showing or with other competition they meet.

Since pigs are relatively small, and young people can work with them easily, swine projects are excellent for 4-H members. Swine are the smartest of all farm animals, and they can be handled and trained for showing in a short time.

Many 4-H members start with breeding and market hog projects and soon have a small herd of their own.

DECA Students Attend State Conference

Eight members of Circleville DECA I and II were part of the 1,312 DECA members and special guests that attended the 31st annual Ohio DECA State Leadership Conference on March 7 and 8. The conference was held at the Columbus Sheraton Hotel.

Sharon Snyder, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Marlin Snyder, 325 E. Mound St., was second runnerup in the State Job Interview Girl contest.

Others that represented Circleville at the contests were Steve Davis, advertising; Bob Snyder, petroleum; Anita Stevens, business vocabulary; Dave Rossiter, business math; Darrell McCoy, free enterprise; Ron Huffer, food marketing; and Randy Young, investments.

Accompanying the students were DECA co-ordinators William Rosengarten and Mrs. M. A. Greenwood, who assisted in administering the state income tax contest.

With Pride, We Salute Our Local 4-H Club Members for their efforts and achievements. Through their Head... Heart... Hands... Health program, they are learning better ways of farming and homemaking, better ways of working together, better citizenship for a better tomorrow.

We take pleasure in congratulating our 4-H boys and girls and wish them the best of success in their projects.

WARD'S CARDINAL MARKET

DP&L Customers Happy With Steam

DAYTON, Ohio (AP) — Some Dayton Power & Light Co. customers do not worry about soaring electricity rates and shortages of natural gas.

They are the 432 customers who buy two billion pounds of water radiant heat — old fashioned steam — each year from DP&L.

That is the equivalent of 240 million gallons of demineralized water heated past the boiling point by 143,000 tons of coal burning in giant boilers.

The pressurized steam is forced through nearly 18 miles of underground plumbing to inhouse steam pipes that occasionally clank and heat registers that drip, but provide plenty of heat.

Dayton's underground steam heating system ranks 13th in size among such installations in American cities, said Walter M. Gillespie, 57, a 29-year veteran with DP&L and manager of the company's steam heating division.

The steam now is used mostly for heating downtown offices and stores and in heating and processing operations of several commercial and industrial customers.

Despite several new downtown building customers in recent years — a First National Bank building, a new federal building and an IBM building — the total number of customers has dwindled from nearly 650 in the 1930s.

There is only one residential home-heating customer left, said DP&L spokesman Jerry P. Morgan.

Steam heat just is not competitive with electricity and natural gas in initial investment, cost and maintenance, Morgan said.

The cost of steam has been going up recently along with the price of coal. DP&L has a fuel cost pass-through arrangement.

Gillespie said the average cost of 1,000 pounds of steam was $1.83 in 1973, $2.85 in 1974, and $3.45 in December, 1974.

A pound of steam is roughly equivalent in heat value to a cubic foot of natural gas. A thousand cubic feet of gas cost $1.06 on the average in 1973, and $1.19 at the end of 1974, according to DP&L.

Relatively inexpensive, natural gas has been in short supply this winter season, and DP&L allocations to industrial and commercial customers were cut back 29 per cent in January.

"Right now steam is just not competitive with the other forms (of heating)," Morgan said. But steam could heat homes, offices and factories again, especially as the natural gas shortage continues and electricity costs rise.

Woman Injured On Snowy Road

Snowy roads were blamed for an early morning accident which left a woman badly injured. According to a report made by State Highway Patrolman Dennis Zwayner, Leona E. Engler, 50, Route 1, Ray, struck another vehicle in the rear on Route 23 at the county Road 511 junction at 6:40 a.m. today. Both cars were traveling northbound when the accident occurred.

Mrs. Engler's vision was apparently hampered in the snowstorm and she hit the vehicle driven by John W. Dean Jr., 22, 515 Comanche Court. Dean was not injured but Ptl. Zwayner reported that both cars were severely damaged.

The injured woman was taken directly to Berger Hospital from where she was later transferred to University Hospital in Columbus.

Ptl. Zwayner said the investigation was still pending.

Mobile Extension Office Located At Pumpkin Show

This trailer was used during the 1974 Pumpkin Show to tell about the Cooperative Extension Service, to inform people of the issues in the fall election and to build leadership in older 4-H youths.

A big part of the 4-H program is to build leadership among the members not only in their local clubs but also in their community. Each club has officers and each meeting is conducted by this set of officers. Also, each club has a community service project. The members look around their community, decide on how they as a group can make it a better place to live, and work together to help solve the problem.

During this last year's Pumpkin Show some members from the Junior Leadership Club helped the agents man the trailer shown above. They conducted an opinion poll of Pickaway County residents above the age of 17. The poll consisted of questions as to whether or not county government should undertake certain projects. The trailer also contained all the candidates and issues which were on the ballot this fall. This way people could study the questions before they went into the polling place. The county service directory, which told what office provides what service and where it is located, was distributed to Pickaway County residents.

The Junior Leaders who helped man the trailer and helped compile the service directory received an invaluable experience in local government and leadership training.

Junior Leader Club Open To Any 4-Hers

By SCOTT HARMOUNT

The Junior Leaders Club is for members of any county 4-H club who are 14 years old, have been in 4-H for at least one year and who carry at least one project.

Junior Leadership is a separate project area and its purpose is to help advisors and younger 4-H members with their projects, books, or any questions which might arise. There are approximately 45 Junior Leaders throughout Pickaway County who belong to the county club. Teens may be Junior Leaders without actually being in the county club by simply helping the advisor or younger members of their local club. To be a member of the county club they must attend 6 of our 12 meetings and fill out a project book. The county club meets once a month in the 4-H and Grange Building and has a program and discusses projects which could be beneficial to the county 4-H program.

The program for 1975 has already begun but there are many exciting and educational programs left. The January program was a presentation on Citizenship Short Course and Ohio 4-H Club Congress by Molly Hamrick and Scott Harmount. The February program will be Junior Leaders training session to be conducted by Dan Brinker, Bob Winter and Barb Hedges. The purpose of this program is to give the new members an idea of the responsibilities of a Junior Leader and how they can help in their local club. Some of the highlights in this year's program are a trip to the Ohio Historical Museum and Ohio Village, Interstate Exchange of Junior Leaders, swim party, hayride, and the banquet at the end of the year.

This year the Junior Leaders Club is going to start a new project area called "Mrs. G. Arden," which is an elementary gardening project. Each of the Junior Leader's in the county club will have about 5 kids which they will supervise, and 3 of these groups will meet together as a club with the Junior Leaders as advisors. If this project is well responded to, it will then next year become part of the regular 4-H project areas.

West Virginia Hikes Pay

CHARLESTON, W.Va. (AP) — Pay raises for teachers and state police and funding for projects from a medical school to a hall of fame were swiftly dispatched to the governor Sunday as the West Virginia Legislature extended itself past its regular session.

The 60-day session ended at midnight Saturday, but the legislators approved a resolution stretching it until April 14 — although it took two resolutions and much confusion to do so.

After the Sunday session that dealt with all pending bills and crept to 2 a.m. today, both chambers adjourned until 7 p.m. April 11, presumably then to override any gubernatorial vetoes.

The bill increasing the basic annual salaries of public school teachers by $500 across-the-board passed by votes of 27-0 in the Senate and 86-2 in the House. The $11.2 million measure is a conference committee compromise of differing Senate and House bills.

Another unanimous Senate vote sent to the governor a conference bill raising monthly pay of all state police grades by $55. The House approved the measure Saturday.

Breeding Gilt, Market Hog Projects Most Popular

NOLAN HINES

Nolan Hines, son of Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Hines, Sr., Route 1, Ashville, is shown with his breeding gilt project.

The breeding gilt project and the market hog project are probably two of the most popular projects in Pickaway County. Last year 4-H members in Pickaway County showed over 300 hogs at the county fair.

The breeding gilt project helps members learn some of the important things about choosing and raising a gilt that will make a good brood sow. The members are taught to look for an animal that has a clean cut head, an evenly turned topline, a stretchy body, a heavily muscled ham, a well developed rudder section, and is a rugged boned individual.

Physician Speaks On Abortions

BOSTON (AP) — Dr. Kenneth C. Edelin, the physician convicted of manslaughter in the death of a fetus he aborted in a legal operation, says he would be happy if he never had to perform another abortion.

"But it's not my choice," the Boston City Hospital doctor said Sunday. "That choice cannot be made by religious or political leaders, by physicians or by juries. That choice must be made by women."

Sean Connery Said Married

LONDON (AP) — A London newspaper says that actor Sean Connery, the movies' James Bond, has secretly married a French Moroccan portrait painter.

The Daily Mirror said in a story from Marrakesh, Morocco, where Connery is making a movie, that the bride was Micheline Roquebrune, 39. It said she had been married twice before.

Connery, 44, and actress Diane Cilento were divorced in 1973 after 10 years of marriage.

The paper said that a friend of the couple reported they were married in Casablanca about four months ago.

The goal of both the breeding and market hog projects is to teach the members to raise pigs in a profitable way. This means the member should learn to raise an animal which will make him some money as well as a high producing, high quality, lean and juicy end product.

The member is expected to learn to assume the responsibility that goes with managing and learning about swine production. They are expected to practice good sportsmanship in showing or with other competition they meet.

Since pigs are relatively small, and young people can work with them easily, swine projects are excellent for 4-H members. Swine are the smartest of all farm animals, and they can be handled and trained for showing in a short time.

Many 4-H members start with breeding and market hog projects and soon have a small herd of their own.

WARD'S CARDINAL MARKET

DP&L Customers Happy With Steam

DAYTON, Ohio (AP) — Some Dayton Power & Light Co. customers do not worry about soaring electricity rates and shortages of natural gas.

They are the 432 customers who buy two billion pounds of water radiant heat — old fashioned steam — each year from DP&L.

That is the equivalent of 240 million gallons of demineralized water heated past the boiling point by 143,000 tons of coal burning in guant boilers.

The pressurized steam is forced through nearly 18 miles of underground plumbing to inhouse steam pipes that occasionally clank and heat registers that drip, but provide plenty of heat.

Dayton's underground steam heating system ranks 13th in size among such installations in American cities, said Walter M. Gillespie, 57, a 29-year veteran with DP&L and manager of the company's steam heating division.

The steam now is used mostly for heating downtown offices and stores and in heating and processing operations of several commercial and industrial customers.

Despite several new downtown building customers in recent years — a First National Bank building, a new federal building and an IBM building — the total number of customers has dwindled from nearly 650 in the 1930s.

There is only one residential home-heating customer left, said DP&L spokesman Jerry P. Morgan.

Steam heat just is not competitive with electricity and natural gas in initial investment, cost and maintenance, Morgan said.

The cost of steam has been going up recently along with the price of coal. DP&L has a fuel cost pass-through arrangement.

Gillespie said the average cost of 1,000 pounds of steam was $1.83 in 1973, $2.85 in 1974, and $3.45 in December, 1974.

A pound of steam is roughly equivalent in heat value to a cubic foot of natural gas. A thousand cubic feet of gas cost $1.06 on the average in 1973, and $1.19 at the end of 1974, according to DP&L.

Relatively inexpensive, natural gas has been in short supply this winter season, and DP&L allocations to industrial and commercial customers were cut back 29 per cent in January.

"Right now steam is just not competitive with the other forms (of heating)," Morgan said. But steam could heat homes, offices and factories again, especially as the natural gas shortage continues and electricity costs rise.

Woman Injured On Snowy Road

Snowy roads were blamed for an early morning accident which left a woman badly injured. According to a report made by State Highway Patrolman Dennis Zwyer, Leona E. Engler, 50, Route 1, Ray, struck another vehicle in the rear on Route 23 at the county Road 511 junction at 6:40 a.m. today. Both cars were traveling northbound when the accident occurred.

Mrs. Engler's vision was apparently hampered in the snowstorm and she hit the vehicle driven by John W. Dean Jr., 22, 515 Comanche Court. Dean was not injured but Ptl. Zwyer reported that both cars were severely damaged.

The injured woman was taken directly to Berger Hospital from where she was later transferred to University Hospital in Columbus.

Ptl. Zwyer said the investigation was still pending.
